Churchill Wants New Vote Before Action On Steel

Asks Change In Election Plan To Give Fairer Representation

LONDON (UP)—Winston Churchill demanded today that Britain's shaky Labor government postpone nationalizing iron and steel for at least nine months after a new general election.

The Conservative opposition leader told the new Commons that a majority of voters in the Feb. 23 general election showed they were against the Steel Nationalization Act.

The Steel Act was passed by the old Parliament, to take effect next Jan. 1. The Conservative and Liberal parties pledged to repeal the act, won a majority of the popular vote in last month's election, but the Labor government nevertheless captured a slim majority of seven seats in the new House.

Mr. Churchill also called today for revision of Britain's election system and demanded appointment of a special parliamentary committee to consider the question.

He said the general election Feb. 24 had produced a "stalemate of deadlock" in the government of the country.

LIBERALS' POSITION

He said he thought it an injustice that the Liberals—Britain's third party—should have won only nine seats in the House although it polled 2,500,000 votes.

"I don't think this is a matter which we can brush aside or allow to lie unheeded," he said. "Therefore, I make the following proposal to His Majesty's government, namely, that we should set up a select committee to inquire into the whole question of electoral reform."

"A select committee of the House of Commons would not be likely to lose its way amid the endless arguments and details with which the question bristles."

He said the electoral position in Britain never had been examined in the light of such a position as has now come about.

'UNDUE INFLUENCE'

Although he felt the injustice of the Liberals' plight, Churchill said, he thought it had been too readily assumed that the nine Liberals elected would "have a position of exceptional and undue influence."

"I hope the House of Commons is not going to allow itself to be dominated or let its fate be decided by any small body of members," he said.

Churchill referred to the fact that the Liberals might hold the balance of power in a close vote between the Conservatives and Laborites.

The Labor government has a majority of only seven over the combined opposition parties in the new Commons.

POLICE TREATMENT

He also was quoted that police treated him "very good."

"What was the conduct of our government after your arrest?" the prosecutor asked Shipkov.

"Very good."

"Were there any tortures?" the prosecutor asked.

"No. A very humane attitude." The arrest referred to was the second for Shipkov and was made last February.

Shipkov originally was arrested, questioned, tortured and released last August. He based his expose on his experiences at that time.

The Sofia dispatches quoted Shipkov that he carried on his espionage in behalf of the United States at the personal direction of Donald B. Heath, U.S. minister in Sofia until the U.S. and Bulgaria severed diplomatic relations Feb. 21.

They said he admitted acting as a spy for six years.

Shipkov's four co-defendants were identified as Jikwa Tomova Rindova, 32, a former legation telephone operator; Stefan Kratunkov, 25, a former student; Nikola Tzanov, 23, and Vassil Maltchev, 19.

Third Of Idled Miners Working

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Coal production in the United States sped toward normal today in the wake of a month-long soft coal strike.

The coal poured in steady streams from towering mine tipples into waiting gondola and hopper cars that rushed them to fuel-needy areas.

Nearly one-third of the idle diggers happily shouldered picks and shovels Monday. The work return of the 372,000 striking United Mine Workers was expected to be virtually complete today.

Industries, hard hit by the shutdown, quickly threw off the strike-imposed shackles.

Steel firms and railroads recalled thousands of the more than 225,000 workers made idle by the coal walkout.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway restored dining-car service which was eliminated to conserve coal.

The Interstate Commerce Commission decided to keep in effect its partial ban on coal-burning freight and passenger train service until carriers can build up depleted coal stockpiles.

A late afternoon conference at the I.C.C. may determine when the trains can get back on regular schedules.

Leverett Lyon, an official of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, estimated the strike cost industry in the Chicago area alone $30,000,000 to $50,000,000.

The President of the Union Pacific Railroad said the coal strike cost the road about $3,000,000. Arthur E. Stoddard said that covers the loss of revenue, additional expense the railroad was put to, and curtailment of service.

One Portage, Pa., digger, Vincent Cehelnik, said the strike cost him about $1,000.

With the 70-cent daily wage boost the walkout gained him, he estimated it will take him six years working five days a week to make up his loss.

Church Deacon Jailed For Tax Frauds In U.S.

DAYTON, O. (UP)—A federal grand jury jailed a 42-year-old church official today on 11 counts of fraud and forgery in a "virtually foolproof income tax racket."

Internal Revenue agents said Willie A. Adams, secretary and deacon of the Bethel Church of God, made out several fictitious withholding statements showing he had paid a larger tax than was due on each of the bogus incomes listed.

Adams, who was employed in the Frigidair division of General Motors here, also operated an income tax consulting service at his home.

Five of 11 indictments returned by a federal grand jury charged that Adams filed false income tax returns between May 6, 1949, and June 14, 1949. Five other counts accused him of defrauding the government of $1,815 by forging income tax refund checks.

The 11th indictment charged he passed a forged government cheque at a Dayton clothing store.

The first tip in the case came when the Internal Revenue collector's office noticed a number of refund checks going to the church address. Internal Revenue agents said the racket Adams is accused of operating was "virtually foolproof."

Special agent Max C. Weaver said he knew of only one similar indictment, returned in California.

Quakes In Italy

Philippines

ROME (AP)—A slight earthquake was felt early today at Rocca di Papa, a village about 30 miles south of Rome. The time was 5:04 a.m. (11:04 p.m. E.S.T. Monday).

MANILA (AP)—An earthquake frightened people out of their homes in the Central Philippines today.

The main shock was felt at 10:07 a.m.

No damage was reported and none of consequence was expected by weather bureau seismologists.

But the shock was reported from at least nine larger islands in the Philippines. Northern Mindanao, big southern island, was shaken intermittently for 43 minutes.

Weather Forecast

Sunny, becoming cloudy overnight and clearing by noon Wednesday. Light winds, increasing to northeast 15 m.p.h. this evening and shifting to southwest 25 m.p.h. Wednesday morning; little change in temperature. Low tonight, 39; high Wednesday, 49.

Controversy Over B-36 Revived By New Proposal

WASHINGTON (UP)—A new B-36 controversy was in the making today with disclosure that the air force may soup up the giant plane again instead of continuing work on a new long-range jet bomber.

Inquiring members of Congress were told money problems might dictate such a move. Rep. Hugh B. Mitchell (D-Wash.), said he was informed to that effect but he did not see how the "temporary expedient of jazzing up the B-36" would be as satisfactory as building the projected B-52.

The B-52, now under development by the Boeing Aircraft Co. at Seattle is expected to be a better-than 500-mile-an-hour jet bomber with a ceiling of 35,000 feet and range up to 8,000 miles. That would put almost any target within its reach from North American bases.

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force Chief of Staff, told Congress last August that "we are exerting every energy we are capable of within the air force to get a replacement for the B-36." The replacement, he said, could be the B-52.

He made the statement before the House Armed Services Committee which was investigating navy charges that the B-36 was an inferior bomber.

The air force disclosed Monday that it is re-examining B-52 plans but has not yet decided whether the project will be "dropped."

It also said it was studying what design and power modifications are possible in the B-36.

All-Out Relief Plan Urged; Disaster Near

PEIPING (UP)—A top Chinese Communist official says 7,000,000 persons in Communist China are starving to death. An estimate of China's food picture was made in a speech to the Central Relief Commission by a Communist Vice-Premier. His speech was broadcast from Peiping.

The official—Tung Pi-wu—admits people in many areas are eating leaves and grass in search of nourishment. Tung says Communist China faces four more hungry months before the first harvest in June. He goes on to say the next four months will decide whether the food shortage reaches disaster proportions and urges all-out relief measures.

City Rocked By Explosion Of Gas Line

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UP)—The main gas line into Springfield exploded early today and police said the blast "rocked the entire city."

No one was injured, police said, but the explosion left the town without gas service.

The explosion occurred at a sub-station a mile south of town. The shooting flames ignited a filling station 50 yards away and burned it to the ground.

Highway Unit Seeking Plane

ALBION, Okla. (UP)—A highway patrol unit, searching for a reported plane crash, found a large brush fire raging in the desolate Kiamichi Mountains before dawn today.

The unit was sent to the lonely wilderness in southeastern Oklahoma after Mrs. Birdie Kootz, Albion cafe owner, reported she had seen what appeared to be a four-engine plane circling over Albion about 8 p.m. It apparently was having engine trouble and circled the town twice she said.

Three flashes in the mountains occurred shortly afterwards she said.

Highway patrol headquarters at McAlester, Okla., which kept radio contact with the search party, said the troopers found a brush fire as soon as they reached the mountain area.

"They put that fire out," the McAlester office said. "But they found another larger fire in the area where the plane may have crashed."

Weather Forecast

Sunny, becoming cloudy overnight and clearing by noon Wednesday. Light winds, increasing to northeast 15 m.p.h. this evening and shifting to southwest 25 m.p.h. Wednesday morning; little change in temperature. Low tonight, 39; high Wednesday, 49.

BRITAIN HAS NEW JET CAR, PRESS SAYS

To Be Exhibited Later This Week, Reports Claim

LONDON (UP)—The British press reported today that the British Rover Car Company had won the world race to produce the first jet-propelled automobile, but company officials declined to comment.

The reports said the car had been built by the Rover Company of Birmingham, makers of a popular medium-priced car, in collaboration with the Ministry of Supply and would be exhibited later this week.

Officials of the company said the reports were a "breach of confidence" and had been "embellished."

Strict industrial censorship has been clamped on research leading to a jet-propelled car here as in the United States, where Detroit motor manufacturers are known for their care in guarding the secret of a new model.

NO DATE SET

R. S. Mills, publications relations counsel for Rover, said the jet car was in the experimental process and "would definitely be tried out sometime—but we can't say when."

Mills refused to say how close the experimental model was to actual road tests and other company officials declined to elaborate on the reports in any way.

The reports published here said the jet car is powered by a gas turbine engine known as the "Whizzer," which runs on kerosene. It was described as three feet long and 18 inches wide. The reports said it developed 100 British horsepower, which is equal to 300 horsepower on the American scale.

WHITTLE'S DESIGN

According to the reports, the "Whizzer" was based on a jet engine developed by Sir Frank Whittle, world pioneer in jet propulsion and inventor of the British Whittle jet engine for aircraft.

The new car will have no radiator, piston engine, gear assembly or drive shaft, according to the London reports.

Rover now makes a conventional semi-sports car which is one of Britain's best vehicles in the middle-price range.

Begin Task Of Clearing Line Today

At Least Seven Perish In Fire At Ocean Falls

LOCOMOTIVE DERAILED BY ROCKSLIDE

Quick Action
By Engineer
Averts Tragedy

Rushed to the scene today, a C.N.R. maintenance crew faced the task of removing hundreds of tons of rock which caused the derailment of a freight engine shortly before 10 Monday night.

A more serious accident was averted by the quick action of engineer William Mellon just before the derailment.

Handling the controls of the steam-powered locomotive on the daily freight run from Cowichan Bay to the city, Mellon jumped to the brakes when the headlight focused on a rockslide over the narrow stretch of line between two banks of solid rock behind Parson's Bridge.

Hundreds of tons of rock from the south side of the cut had come loose and the straight stretch of rails between the canyon-like passage had been bent to a considerable angle. Ties had been ripped from the earth by the force of the slide.

C.N.R. officials said rockslides were not unusual in that particular area which is five and one-half miles by rail from the city. Slides have occurred in almost the same position in previous years. Recent frosts and heavy rains are believed to be the cause of Monday's slide.

It is thought the slide occurred immediately before the arrival of the 15-car freight, which was scheduled to arrive at the Point Ellice terminus at 10.

Mellon, whose home is in Vancouver, was credited with saving the train from a total wreck as well as probably his own life and those in the cab with him.

Mellon applied the brakes as soon as he caught sight of the twisted rails, but the force of the 15 cars behind the locomotive forced it into the buffers, derailing the engine and lammie it north side of the canyon.

B.C. POTATO CROP DELAYED

NEW WESTMINSTER (BUP)—The bad weather in the lower B.C. mainland in February held up planting of this year's potato crop, farmers said today. S. Speilfore of Boundary Bay, one of the largest growers on the lower mainland, said potato planting was usually finished by the end of February.

Labor Offered Respite From Big Pressure

LONDON (CP)—Winston Churchill offered the Labor government today a chance to ease its precarious position in exchange for postponement of steel nationalization.

In his first clash with Labor since the elections which cut Labor's majority to seven, Churchill put Prime Minister Attlee on the spot with a request for a definite pledge that Labor would not take over steel until a date "not later than nine months after the next general election."

The government rejected the proposal. Speaking for the government, Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister, labelled Churchill's proposal "a quaint idea." He indicated Labor would prefer to face a running battle in the House.

Attlee told the Commons Friday that Labor would stick to the schedule for nationalization of steel. "Our purpose is to give effect to acts passed by Parliament," he said.

What Churchill offered Labor was a respite from the threat of a sudden overthrow. It would relieve the pressure on many government ministers who would otherwise have to drop their duties at any time to rush into Commons for a vote.

The Nationalization Bill passed by the last Parliament provides that government directors be appointed after Oct. 1, 1950, and that the actual take-over of the steel industry should be accomplished between Jan. 1, 1951, and Jan. 1, 1952.

The Conservatives decided Monday night to press for a vote expressing dissatisfaction with Labor's policies on nationalization of steel and construction of housing. A vote on the nationalization motion is due in the Commons Thursday, while a vote on Churchill's second motion is due next Monday.

Churchill opened debate on the government's program by saying the British voters had declared against government ownership of industry.

At one point Churchill called for a parliamentary committee to study reform of the British electoral system. He said reform would be justified by the fact that 186 members of the new House had been elected by a minority of those who voted in their districts.

One Missing As Flames Sweep Apartment Block

OCEAN FALLS, B.C. (BUP)—Seven bodies were recovered and one person was missing today after an early morning blaze which swept a frame 25-suite apartment at Ocean Falls, B.C., 350 miles north of Vancouver.

Two children, one eight months old, were among the dead and missing. The others were two men and four women. They were from three separate families. Names of the dead and missing were not released.

Flames broke out in a third floor kitchen at 1:45 a.m. and were brought under control five and a quarter hours later by the 12-man volunteer fire brigade under Clarence Clark.

The dead were found on the third and fourth floors of the four-story, white-painted building, owned by Pacific Mills and occupied by its Ocean Falls employees and their families. Three bodies were found crammed in a small passageway at the rear of the fourth floor.

MANY LOOKED ON

Volunteer fireman R. R. Edwards said the flaming building was silhouetted against a clear moon-lit sky. Most of the town's 2,700 residents left their homes in night clothes to watch the fire. After the flames were brought under control, firemen began bringing the bodies out one by one. They were placed on stretchers and left outside the smoking building. Later the bodies were taken to the town's small morgue, completely filling it.

Twenty-one of the apartment suites were occupied by Pacific Mills families. About 60 persons were in the building when the fire broke out, and most escaped down the iron fire escape at the front of the building.

Volunteer fireman Edwards said he arrived on the scene at 2:15 a.m. and the fire "was burning madly with the flames going 15 to 20 feet above the apartment building."

WIND DROPPED

"I helped with the hoses and worked with the chief. We were lucky the wind died down because it probably would have spread the flames to the duplex on the right of the apartment and to another house right on the other side."

Edwards said "three of the bodies were found in a small passageway at the end of the building on the fourth floor. One body was found on the third, and all the others on the fourth. I don't know where we'll find the one that's missing."

Guay Told Mrs. Pitre To 'Destroy Yourself'

Key Witness In Airliner Murder Case
Says Accused Showed Suicide Plans

QUEBEC CITY (BUP)—Mrs. Marguerite Pitre testified today J. Albert Guay told her to "destroy yourself" after the blow-up of a DC-3 airliner when Mrs. Rita Guay and 22 others perished.

"Guay told me to close the window and door of my room, open the four keys of my gas stove, and take a yellow pill he gave me," she told a 12-man jury. The plump Quebec ex-restaurant worker said Guay threatened her life after it became known she might be questioned in connection with the air tragedy.

"I told Guay I would tell the whole thing to my husband, but I was frightened when he put his hand in the breast-pocket of his suit," she said.

Obviously jittery, Mrs. Pitre exploded in cross-examination by Guay's counsel, Gerard Levesque, and Prosecutor Noel Dorion advised her "not to work yourself into a frenzy."

IN GUAY'S DEBT

Mrs. Pitre admitted to Levesque she owed Guay $627, but claimed it did not affect her relationship with him.

She also admitted Guay returned to her home Sept. 19, the same day he had ordered her to commit suicide or confess to time-bombing the plane.

Evidence On Air Favors Sander's Case

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UP)—A medical witness testified at Dr. Hermann N. Sander's mercy murder trial today that 40 cubic centimeters of air were not enough to kill a person.

Dr. Richard Ford, pathologist of Harvard University, went to the witness stand after the doctor's loyal wife, in a brief, dramatic appearance, told the all-man jury that her husband had been worried and tired at the time he injected air into the veins of his cancer patient.

LENGTHY AUTOPSY

Dr. Ford performed an exhaustive 10-hour autopsy on the body of the patient, Mrs. Abbie C. Borroto, 59, several weeks after she died. He struck at the heart of the state's murder case by stating "Forty CCS is not enough to block the arterial system leading to the human lung."

Defence Attorney Robert E. Booth asked him that if a medical record stated a person died easily after an air injection, it that indicated the air actually killed her.

"It would indicate to me death had resulted from other causes than air," Dr. Ford said.

Dr. Ford said that research conducted on animals indicated it would take "200 to 300 cubic centimeters of air delivered within 25 seconds" to kill a human.

Booth asked if it would take less air to kill a dying person.

"I have an opinion," Dr. Ford said.

"What is it?"

"I do not think so."

Work Or More Cash Relief Demanded By Jobless Here

SKYLARKS SING OVER VICTORIA TO HERALD ADVENT OF SPRING

The skylarks are at it again. And it's a sure sign of spring, according to Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Beasly, 255 Battleford Avenue.

The couple were the first to report seeing skylarks singing this year. The birds, noted for their songs uttered as they rise in almost perpendicular flight, were seen singing in the rain near Burnside and Tillamook Roads quite unconcerned by the downpour.

Not to be outdone by the avian species, frogs croaked in the nearby fields.

Delegation Set To See Cabinet Tomorrow Morn

Immediate work or greater financial relief is the demand of a delegation of jobless men from lower B.C. mainland and up-island points which arrived in Victoria this afternoon.

A small committee of the delegation will take its demand to Premier Byron Johnson and his cabinet at 10 Wednesday morning.

The "March on the Capital," as the delegation has been called, is sponsored by the Unemployed Action Association. In addition, it has been given both moral and financial support by the Labor-Progressive Party.

Leader and chief spokesman for the delegation here is Fred Collins. Said to have been a Pacific coast resident for only a year, Collins described himself as an unemployed seaman.

A public reception for the delegation originally scheduled for tonight has been called off. A rally will be held Wednesday afternoon, however, at which the public will be welcomed.

The rally will be held in the Williams Building, 749 Broughton Street, after the delegation has finished its business at the Parliament Buildings.

Arrangements for the visit of the unemployed have been handled by the Victoria office of the Woodworkers' International Union of Canada.

The union has arranged for the majority of the unemployed to be housed tonight in private homes. Many of the delegates will return to their own homes Wednesday night. The others will leave on Thursday.

Last Of Idled Miners Return To Coal Pits

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The last of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers straggled back to the pits today as industries hard hit by the coal shortage recalled thousands of furloughed workers.

Some 200,000 miners went back today. The remainder, numbering about 172,000, delayed 24 hours until Lewis' telegram ordering work to resume following signing of a new contract Sunday was read at local meetings.

The flow of coal to fuel-starved cities and industries swelled, but some retail dealers continued to ration deliveries.

New York Fuel Administrator Benjamin Tamm canceled a state-wide brownout order which went into effect Feb. 19 and had dimmed the lights on New York city's Great White Way.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., which cut its Pittsburgh operations almost in half at the peak of the shortage, put eight idle blast furnaces back in operation and brought coke production back to normal.

Jones & Laughlin, which was closed completely by the coal shortage, resumed operations in Pittsburgh and Allquippa, Pa., but said it would be three weeks before all the 23,000 steelworkers furloughed were back at work.

Railroads, which laid off 62,000 men, recalled freight crewmen and announced that shop and maintenance workers would be put back to work as coal movements increased.

Reinstatement of coal-burning passenger trains, cut 50 per cent by the Interstate Commerce Commission, awaited I.C.C. approval.

Inquest Follows Death Of Man Hit In December

Injured in an accident Dec. 5, Richard Williams Corner, aged 85, 465 Kingston Street, died in Jubilee Hospital Monday.

Dr. E. C. Hart, coroner, this morning reported an inquest will be held Thursday morning at 10 at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Parlors.

A resident of Victoria since 1934, Mr. Corner became the seventh traffic fatality from accidents in 1949.

According to the city police report on the accident three months ago at Menzies and R. W. Corner Quebec Streets, Mr. Corner suffered a possible skull fracture and concussion when he was in collision with a car.

Constables Arthur Deeks and Lorne Johnson of the city traffic department said Mr. Corner was crossing Menzies on foot from east to west in the middle of the intersection when a truck driven by William Wille, 1114 Johnson Street, proceeding south on Menzies, was in collision with him at Quebec Street.

The truck was impounded at that time. The accident occurred about 6:05 in the evening, police said.

Born in South Shields, England, Mr. Corner came to Winnipeg in 1911. He was active in real estate for 10 years in that city and came to Victoria to retire in the early 30's.

Death Toll Of Montreal Fire Raised To Five

MONTREAL (CP)—The known death toll in last Thursday's Chinatown fire stood at five today. The revised missing list is eight.

One body was recovered Sunday night from the ruins of the Lotus Garden Hotel, where the fire broke out. The charred body but believed possibly that of Peter Uyeda, 45, a Japanese from Vancouver.

One man lost his life by jumping from a third-story window at the height of the fire. Three other bodies were found the same day, one of them later identified.

Over five degrees of ground frost was recorded at the Gonzales Observatory Monday night. The official temperature on the grass was 26.7 degrees, observatory officials reported. The minimum temperature on the lawn was 34 degrees.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

FAGGOTS AND FOOD

TUCKED AWAY in an envelope among my voluminous mail the other day was a clipping from the Feb. 7 issue of the London Daily Mirror. Who sent it I don't know, but it was all about an English couple visiting Victoria and feeling homesick for faggots.

As Mollere once wrote, "There are faggots and faggots." And "faggots" is a word which has more than one meaning. According to my Chambers' dictionary, a faggot can mean a bundle of sticks, or a bundle of iron pieces for welding, or "a soldier numbered on the muster-roll but not really existing," or "a voter who has obtained his vote expressly for party purposes, on a spurious or sham qualification."

HOMESICK FOR THEM

BUT THE FAGGOTS which inspired the news story were none of these. They are apparently an English delicacy of which I, an Englishwoman by birth, had no previous knowledge, by the way.

And it seems that Victoria, despite all the boasts about it "being a little bit of England on the shores of the Pacific," is sadly lacking in this Old Country dish. Says the item: "Mr. and Mrs. D. (I refrain from using the full name) of Swindon, Wilts, like Canada. In fact they are very happy—but for one thing. No one in Victoria knows how to make faggots."

CAN'T MAKE THEM

DESPITE THEIR fondness for faggots, even Mrs. D. doesn't know how to make them, it seems. When at home in Swindon, she buys them from a little pie shop which specializes in the delicacy. Her son-in-law accordingly wrote to the Mayor of Swindon a letter, which was reproduced in the local papers, as follows:

"Please could you give me directions on baking faggots. My father and mother-in-law are always talking about their favorite dish and I'd like to give them a surprise."

MINISTRY OBLIGES

ACCORDING to the Mirror item, the Mayor of Swindon is going to send the requested recipe by air mail as soon as he gets it. I don't know if the promised recipe has got here yet, and I hope that anything I write here won't spoil the intended surprise that thoughtful and considerate son-in-law has in store for his Wiltshire "in-laws."

But I was interested to read that the London daily went to the Food Advice Centre of the Food Ministry to discover the secret of making faggots and was told "they are very good for you." Furthermore, the Centre provided a recipe.

HOW IT IS DONE

I AM REPRODUCING it here, in case any other Old Country visitors are feeling homesick for faggots. Here it is:

"One pound pig's liver, 6 ounces fat bacon, 1 lb. onions, 1 teaspoonful mixed herbs, 1 lb. stale bread, 1 dessert-spoonful chopped parsley, 1 pig's caul."

Cut bread into small pieces, cut off crusts, soak in cold water. Squeeze out moisture and smooth with fork. Wash liver; remove rind from bacon. Cut liver and bacon into small pieces, mix with onions, and put the lot through the mincer.

Add herbs and parsley to bread, season, add minced meat. Roll into balls. Wash caul, cut into 4-inch squares, wrap round meat balls. Pack closely in baking tin. Leave in hot oven for half an hour."

And if, to me, that recipe suggests that there is some distant relationship—such as second cousin, twice removed—between a faggot, a haggis and a hamburger—well, as someone once said, "one man's meat is another man's rissoles."

Pirates (Male-of-all-works) Barbara Brooks

Producer, Victor W. Mills

Musical Director, G. E. Bower

The outstanding feature of the of the Gilbert and Sullivan Society has, from the first, been the fine, fresh quality of the chorus singing. In the current production of "The Pirates of Penzance," the chorus, both male and female, have some superlative passages to sing and are more successful than ever in many instances. The show opened Monday night at the Royal Theatre.

The "chattering" chorus, "How Beautifully Blue the Sky," for instance, was a triumph for the girls and "A Rolling Band of Pirates" was especially well done by the men.

The opening, "Pour, O Pour the Pirate Sherry" lacked vitality and movement but was distinguished by a bit of solo work—the pleasing voice and stage personality of John Boel, undoubtedly a future star of

G. and S. shows.

The large first-night audience stopped the show at the conclusion of the lovely duet, "O

Leave Me Not to Pine," sung

by Pauline Barnett and Alan

White. Applause was continuous until they repeated the number, Miss Barnett who was an appealing "Mabel," has a clear and strong soprano that is particularly effective when she uses it as she did in this second act duet.

Alan White sings well and was pleasing in the wistful "O,

Is There Not One Maiden

Brent." His chief trouble is that he is static on the stage and needs to work harder at learning to be an actor.

Frank Dunn can be considered a veteran now, having been in

G. and S. from the beginning, and with each part he seems to get a little better. He is a "natural" for such roles as the Major-General and showed plenty of aplomb and flexibility in singing the famous "patter" song.

Barbara Brooks, Clayton Worm-ell, Ivan Howell and the principal girls were all vocally pleasing and acquitted themselves well. On the whole, however, the

Damon Runyon Owes His Success to Chinese Friend

Good Samaritan Van Loan informed Runyon in his letter that he was the fair-haired boy of that New York newspaper office. He had recommended hiring Runyon. He explained, however, that the editor in chief had declined to send railway fare and expenses to the Western recruit.

Unable to raise the $500 needed for the New York venture, Runyon sat with Jim Wong one early morning at the Press Club. The steward came out of one of his long silences: "I get you the money, maybe."

"You!" Runyon said. "Where'd you find five hundred, Jim?" "Me and the partners, maybe." Jim's partners were the three Cantonese men with whom he bunked in Hop Alley. The four cronies kept their combined savings in a big treasure chest. They were hoarding this pool against a day when they might retire to Canton, there to be buried at last in great style among their ancestors.

Wong called a meeting of the partners. Jim and two other members of the board were in favor of the Runyon loan. The fourth partner, nicknamed by Runyon "the Gow," alone dissented. The Gow maintained that Damon was a bad risk, especially were he to go out of town. Besides, said the Gow, the petitioner played jokes on people. Anyone who played jokes might be expected to regard a loan lightly.

Victoria Cougars Visit School Patrol

An exciting day for safety patrol detachment of Sir James Douglas School came Monday when Victoria Cougars inspected detachment and praised work carried out by teams in Victoria schools. Hockey players will be hosts to 400 boys and girls of Kiwanis school safety patrol Friday evening when Cougars meet Seattle in regular P.C.H.L. game. Added feature will be five-minute broom ball game between Victoria and Oak Bay Kiwanis Clubs.

SO THAT TWO MIGHT LIVE

Albert Einstein, Dagwood Bumstead, Bob Hope and Ebenezer Scrooge had to die in order that Stalin and Churchill might live... at least, that is the way Victoria College students determined it should be during the course of a unique debate Monday.

To reach this solution, six students, representing the six notables, imagined themselves in a balloon descending over the Atlantic Ocean from which four must jump to save the lives of two.

The debate was over the question: "Who Will Jump?"

Kiwanians Named To District Committees

Six members of the city Kiwanis Club have been appointed to committees on the Pacific Northwest Kiwanis International District, it is announced.

Ralph Matthews has been named chairman of the public relations committee. The remaining five have been named members of other committees. They are: Charlie Booth, attendance and membership; M. V. Chesnut, public and business affairs; Tom Emmerson, support of churches; Arnold McDermid, educational and fellowship; and Darrell Spence, interclub relations.

Canadians Second In Men's Fashion World

A representative of an English haberdashery firm from London, visiting Victoria, said Americans were the world's best dressers, and the Canadians came next.

Paul Salgo, Hungarian-born commercial traveler, said men's stylists in London copy American fads and fashions, and their goods were accepted favorably by high society there.

There was a tendency to be a little more conservative in some clothes, however, Mr. Salgo said.

Used Oxygen Mask

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—An oxygen mask—a flier's life-saving device—was used Monday by an air force private to kill himself. Police said Pte. Russell E. O'Bannon donned his oxygen mask, attached it to a gas stove connected to a gas line and breathed the deadly fumes.

acting is not as strong a factor in the success of the production as the singing, costumes and and really beautiful scenery.

The orchestra at times, did not seem strong enough to support the singers adequately and was inclined to lag; but no doubt these are wrinkles that will be ironed out tonight and tomorrow when the show is repeated.

Dust Storms, Prairie Fires In Big U.S. Areas

Memories Of 'Black Blizzards' Revived As Soil Flies Early

CHICAGO (AP)—A double-barrelled threat to farmlands—fire and dust—plagued wide areas of plains states today.

High winds whipped up dust clouds Monday over thousands of acres of cropland. Visibility was cut to half a mile in some parts of Texas and New Mexico.

In Kansas, two traffic fatalities were blamed on dust clouds. At Garden City western Kansas visibility and ceiling was reported at zero for a 30-minute period.

The dust brought back memories of the "black blizzards" of the 1930s because it started blowing so early in the year. However, it is not anywhere near as severe as in 1935 and 1936 when dust storms destroyed thousands of acres of rich cropland and ruined countless farmers.

Monday's high winds also sent prairie fires whipping across parts of Texas, Kansas and Nebraska.

In Texas four separate fires blackened thousands of acres of choice ranch and wheatlands. All were in the Texas panhandle. The largest fire, near Dumas, raged out of control for hours.

Near Angora, in western Nebraska, flames burned over more than 15,000 acres.

Fires also swept thousands of acres in Kansas. Volunteers from eight towns helped fight flames that blackened about 36 square

Refuses Grant To Red Cross

Policy of not giving a donation to any charitable cause when the organization makes a house-to-house canvass was deemed to apply to the Red Cross Society as well as others, by Esquimalt councillors Monday night.

Discussing a request from the society for a donation to its current campaign, council members decided that while the Red Cross was performing worthwhile work, it would not be right to make a grant from the municipal treasury, when residents were all expected to give individually.

BUS ENGINE CATCHES FIRE

Fire in a B.C. Electric bus at Burnside and Tillicum Roads Monday night damaged the engine of the machine but no one was injured.

Driver John Wildreth had just discharged all passengers before the bus caught fire. He used a bus fire extinguisher and with the aid of another bus driver fought the fire.

Saanich firemen completed the job.

Pictures Of Australia To Aid Charities

Cmdr. Ivan Day, retired R.C.N. officer, and Mrs. Day are doing much to acquaint Victorians with many of the colorful features of Australia through moving pictures.

Cmdr. Day has more than 70,000 feet of movies, some he took himself when the Days visited that country last year and others provided by the Australian government.

The movie showings are in great demand and Cmdr. and Mrs. Day are volunteering their services for any charity cause.

Movies include the colorful and dangerous sport of surfboard and surfboat racing, beautiful scenic scenes, the oddities of sea life in Australia, and the primitiveness of the aboriginal remnants who have survived the centuries in mid-Australia.

Says Wage Boosts Will Raise Taxes

More Reversions, Collections Slower, City Official Reports

If the city is continually faced with having to boost the wages of its employees, there is very little likelihood of taxes going down this year, J. H. B. Watson, assistant city controller, told a conciliation board Monday.

The board attempting to settle a wage dispute between 16 members of Local 230 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the city concluded its sittings yesterday. It is expected to make its recommendations later this week.

Mr. Watson, who presented the city's case for opposing a 14.2 per cent salary increase to its electrical workers, said the city would be forced to raise its taxes if employees continued to ask for increased pay.

REDUCTION DOUBTFUL

Though the city had increased the tax rate to 53 mills last year, Mr. Watson said tax collections were beginning to drop and reversions of land to the city for non-payment of taxes was increasing. He was of the opinion that the city could not stand the rate of taxation for very long.

It was hoped that there could be some reduction of taxes this year, he said, but with increased salary expenditures it was doubtful if this could be done.

INVOLVES $6,000

C. A. Peck, I.B.E.W. business agent for the union, pointed out the wage increase to the electrical workers would only amount to slightly over $6,000. "I can't see how our demands are going to affect the taxes," he stated. "It only works out to about one-seventh of a mill."

He pointed out that the city had been paying its electrical workers for a number of years sub-standard wages. In his opinion the city had been very lucky and had no cause to complain.

Two Money By-laws Expected In Oak Bay

Oak Bay voters probably will vote on two money by-laws in the late spring.

At that time, if plans go through, the municipality's $30,000 by-law for improvement of the street lighting system and a by-law to cover increased costs for the school building plan, approved in 1947, will be put to the electors.

Proposed lighting system, drawn up by municipal engineer A. S. G. Musgrave, would increase the number of lights from 460 to about 670, with power increased to give more intensive illumination.

Elected president of the Students' Council for fall term at Victoria College Monday, 18-year-old Ken MacKay has necessary experience. He was president of Council, Oak Bay-High School last year. Since end of the war the office of president has been filled by a veteran. MacKay is first postwar president who has not served in armed forces.

Wounded Youth Fights For Life, Felled By Shot Fired By Policeman

A police bullet in his chest, George Silks, 21, left below, of Toronto, is in grave condition. He was shot by Constable Douglas Tilley when he and another youth were running from the officer, who sought to question them about loitering near a parked automobile. Scene where Silks was shot is shown, above. Police charged Silks and James Bullied with attempted theft of the car. Bullied was walking with Silks, who complained of feeling weak. When both boys saw the officer approach they fled. Constable Tilley says he fired five warning shots. One of the shots wounded Silks. His mother, Mrs. Harry Silks, right below, says "He's never been in trouble." (S.N.S. Photos)

Church Deacon Jailed For Tax Frauds In U.S.

DAYTON, O. (UP)—A federal grand jury jailed a 42-year-old church official today on 11 counts of fraud and forgery in a "virtually foolproof income tax racket."

Internal Revenue agents said Willie A. Adams, secretary and deacon of the Bethel Church of God, made out several fictitious withholding statements showing he had paid a larger tax than was due on each of the bogus incomes listed.

Adams, who was employed in the Frigidaire division of General Motors here, also operated an income tax consulting service at his home.

Five of 11 indictments returned by a federal grand jury charged that Adams filed false income tax returns between May 6, 1949, and June 14, 1949. Five other counts accused him of defrauding the government of $1,815 by forging income tax refund cheques.

The 11th indictment charged he passed a forged government cheque at a Dayton clothing store.

The first tip in the case came when the Internal Revenue collector's office noticed a number of refund cheques going to the church address. Internal Revenue agents said the racket Adams is accused of operating was "virtually foolproof." Special agent Max C. Weaver said he knew of only one similar indictment, returned in California.

There Is Always A Big 'If'

ONE PART OF THE SPEECH FROM the Throne with which His Majesty opened the new Parliament in London yesterday is worth more than a cursory examination because of its implications. While the phrase to which we refer was a more or less general one, since it intimated that "it is only through an effective system of security that world peace can be assured," the declaration that control of the production of atomic energy would be supported by the Attlee administration's adherence to the machinery of the United Nations is particularly important at this stage in world history.

No useful purpose can be served by a repetition of the plain truth that until the Soviet Union proves by its actions that it is ready and willing to abide by international agreements, specifically as they refer to the control or elimination of the manufacture of missiles capable of wiping out the last remnants of our much-vaunted civilization, will any substantial degree of progress be made toward realization of the objectives contained in the famous document drawn up and signed by more than two score nations at San Francisco in the late spring of 1945.

Nothing in the foregoing reference to recent history is new. The sentiments inherent in the arguments, nevertheless, still reflect the wishes of peace-loving peoples everywhere. In other words, it all boils down to the basic postulate: What is to be or can be done about a great and powerful nation which seems to have made up its mind to build every type of armament that a possible war of the future would require to assure victory? As we said the other day, the Soviet Union has not embarked upon a "super-colossal" naval program with the sole objective of donating the products of that program to a vast museum for the entertainment of posterity.

What, then, can Mr. Attlee, Mr. Truman, and the leaders of other nations whose basic desire is to live in peace with one another, do about the control and production of atomic energy so long as the men in the Kremlin refuse to be convinced that the Western democracies have no sinister designs whatsoever on those lands and peoples now obviously subservient to Communist dogma and direction? Premier Stalin and his colleagues of the Politburo know full well that no sane individual anywhere wants another war. But the fact remains—and all the world knows it—that in practically every meeting of the General Assembly of the United Nations and in the numerous conclaves of the Security Council the spokesmen for the Communist oligarchy in Moscow have blocked all practical advances toward sensible international understanding.

On the specific subject of atomic energy in all its variety of forms of development, as mentioned in the Speech from the Throne which King George delivered, we have the warning of world-renowned scientists as to what might happen in another major conflict conducted chiefly under the aegis of a strategy determined by the utilization of the latest scientific discoveries. For example, Dr. Urey, a Nobel prize winner, has categorically stated that the hydrogen bomb must be considered as at least one thousand times more powerful than the contrivance dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in the midsummer of 1945. Dr. Albert Einstein, whose scientific eminence needs no emphasis, has said that the hydrogen bomb could bring destruction to all life on Earth "within the range of technical possibilities." Many others, of course, whose scientific penetrations and the conclusions derived therefrom puzzle the layman, have voiced similar opinions.

It will be interesting to observe, therefore, how Mr. Churchill, in his more specific analysis of the Speech from the Throne, will add to his pre-election suggestions of a new approach to Stalin and Company. In view of the governmental pronouncement in respect of the atom in its multifarious uses—particularly as an agent in the employ of a Communist regime which has not lived up to its pledges and which has shown no evidence of mending its ways in the foreseeable future—it will be interesting to watch the progress of the debate at Westminster.

Cold Warring

By STEWART ALSOP, from Washington

AT THIS dark turning point in the cold war, a sense of defeatism and impotence is spreading like a fungus throughout the United States government, the Congress, and the country. Yet the United States is the richest and most powerful nation on earth, standing at the head of a confederation of free and brave peoples. She need not be impotent, if she chooses to use her strength.

George Kennan, the brilliant State Department planner, has written that, as a basic requirement for peace, the United States must create "a situation of fact" which will cause the Kremlin to reverse its policy and abandon its dream of world domination.

IT IS absolutely clear that this "situation of fact" is not now being created. If it is to be created, how must American strength be used? To what ends must United States efforts be directed? How much of her resources must be mobilized? The answers to these questions lie in the following program, which represents in rough dollar terms a sort of brief, simplified consensus of those experts who must now remain publicly silent.

The first essential is to meet the challenge of Soviet rearmament. The defeatists would have it that the military problem is insoluble. It is not.

IN NOVEMBER, 1948, the late Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal presented to the President a military budget of $16,900,000,000. In the judgment of Forrestal, whose wisdom becomes more apparent with every passing day of folly, this sum was sufficient to give reasonable security to the United States. A further sum will be needed to help give the United States the "sense of their own military security" which Kennan also postulates as essential to continued resistance to Soviet pressure. Over all, in dollar terms, what is necessary is an increase in the annual military budget of $5,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000, tapering off as the allies are rearmed.

The doctrine that this will lead to war is demonstrable folly. What will invite Soviet aggression—what has already invited Soviet aggression wherever it has existed—is weakness.

THIS OUTLAY will not provide the Western confederation with aggressive strength, nor will it begin to match the military effort of the Soviet Union, whose whole economy is now dedicated to preparing for war.

Yet the aggressor, by one of the oldest and best military rules, requires a ratio of strength of three to one, and the proposed outlay should thus be enough decisively to deter any aggressive Soviet adventures. Less than this, surely, the wealthiest, the most populous, the most productive nations on earth, cannot do.

In the political and economic sphere, the Western confederation is quite as directly threatened as in the sphere of strategy and simple power. The economic insecurity of the British Commonwealth; the resulting British reluctance to participate in the organization of Europe; the consequent impossibility of building a structure into which Germany can be safely fitted—all these are problems as acute as they are vast.

YET AGAIN, these problems can be dealt with. In the case of Britain, for example, it will cost the United States $10,000,000,000 to $16,000,000,000 annually to fill the power vacuum that will be created if economic crisis forces Britain to go out of business as a world power. The United States has not got this capability. Yet the annual deficiency which is driving Britain toward this disaster for the whole confederation of the West amounts to no more than $1,000,000,000.

The contrast speaks for itself. But the essential point is that dealing with all these problems will mean, at least temporarily, further drafts on American resources. The time for half measures is past. The whole job, of building a solid structure in the West and dealing with Soviet expansion in Asia, must now be done, even if it adds a further burden of $2,000,000,000 or a little more per year, which is about the outside figure.

Not Out Of The Fog Yet

As Our Readers See It

THOSE WERE THE DAYS

The president of Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council has raised an objection to a report that D.P.'s were having to work at Ogden Point docks, 10 hours a day for 65 cents per hour. What of it? They are making good money and are probably well satisfied.

The writer recalls the time, not so very many years ago, when he worked with an elevator construction crew, sometimes in bitter weather, 11 hours a day—6 days a week, at 17½ cents per hour. We worked hard and steadily for that, and there was no discontent.

Those were the days before labor agitators, handouts, social service and now contributory pensions.

SPARE TIME WORK

I have prepared a pamphlet containing information on 50 practical ways of making money in spare or full time.

With unemployment becoming such a problem in the various cities in Canada, I believe that many people would profit much by obtaining one of these pamphlets. Many of the services mentioned are just a revival of old services that were available before the war, but were discontinued owing to the need for workers in factories, etc. However, it is increasingly apparent that efforts are going to have to be made again to find new ways of making a livelihood. There is nothing unusual or difficult about the services outlined in my pamphlet. They are just simple everyday services that are in demand if anyone is available to perform them.

BUTTER VS. MARGARINE

The dairy industry of Canada faces a momentous crisis. Dairy farming is a vital basic industry; it accounts in all its relations for more than three-fifths of Canada's wealth production.

Introduction of margarine into Canadian economy has already cost the Canadian dairy farmer $46,000,000, says the president of the National Dairy Council. He predicts a further substantial drop this year as the direct result of the fall in cheese prices and the loss of the United Kingdom market. This will be reflected in a price decline in all manufactured dairy products.

I, a dairy farmer of life-long experience, in the annual general meeting of the Cowichan District Agricultural Society, convened in Duncan last Jan. 28, moved a resolution advocating a tax of 10 cents per pound on margarine.

The idea is, of course, not to cause the margarine eater to pay more for that food, but to induce him to eat butter which is better for the health and well-being of children, elderly people, indeed everybody; at the same time supporting and encouraging the vital dairy industry which is facing a collapse.

Margarine is a synthetic product; and no synthetic food can ever equal a nature food. The low price food is not always the better food. Butter at 66 cents (present retail) per pound because of its greater food value in relation to nutrition and health is a cheaper food than margarine at 37 cents.

The encouragement of margarine as a food surely has a tendency to lower the standard of living of Canadian rank-and-file people.

Villages Like Great Snoring Mix 'Good Sense And Madness'

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN, From London

IN THE north of NORFOLK there is a village that was as deeply involved in Britain's election as any city borough. But it is different. The village is a lonely place and it lies among fields as big as London's Trafalgar Square.

The village is called Great Snoring. I went there late one evening, driving down the crooked roads, through villages that cast no light on the way, past square church towers that looked like fortresses unable to choose between God and their local feudal lord.

Quite suddenly the headlights picked out a sign post. "Great Snoring," it said. No more. And at once we were in the village. There were houses with windows not much bigger than a dartboard that showed no light through their curtains. They were old houses and their straight lines had bent a little with gentle age.

The school windows were not curtained and they threw bars of light across the road. This was the election meeting. Up the gravelled path I went, past the yard where the kids scream in mock fear by day, and the football posts chalked on the brick wall. Into the school room which was full of men in dark clothes who looked at the floor. It was a Labor meeting, but that made no real difference. They had come to listen, not to criticize or applaud.

The chairman of the 30 who were there was a farmer. He had been speaking too long.

Late, very late, the candidate arrived. He had a large flower in his coat. He clapped one man on the back as he came in and waved to another. He shook the chairman's hand under the bright light. "Good evening friends," he said. And then very serious and to utter silence, he talked of the Labor case.

Of all the meetings I have ever seen, and I saw dozens in the recent election, somehow this was the simplest and the most moving. Nothing great was said; but that bare room was full of men who earn their living hard and reserve their judgment. They asked questions when he had finished.

A farm laborer asked about "tied cottages." Was it right that a man should have to leave his house when he lost his job?

There were other questions simple and direct. It was quiet and serious and it mattered. At the end I spoke to a man with bright eyes looking for his walking stick in the hall-way. He was a laborer—about 45—in gum boots. "What are you going to do in the election?" I said.

"Not sure," he said. "Will you vote Labor?" I said. "Not me, I've had a basin-full of that."

"Liberals?"

"No; I'll not go as far as that."

"Conservative?"

"I think I'll give it a try. Yes, I'll vote Conservative this time. But look here lad," he said, "you get this clear; I'll have nothing to do with that old man Churchill. No, not me. I know too much." And he marched into the night.

Make what you will of it. There was good sense and madness in it—as in all of England.

THOSE who hold that this funny old world of ours is doomed because of "class warfare" and the clash of ideologies, might get comfort from the drama of the British Parliament opening yesterday in London.

Thousands of Britons—rich and poor, aristocrat and little man—lined the route to cheer the royal procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster.

Lords in scarlet and crimson robes and richly appareled ladies filled the august House of Lords' chamber awaiting Their Majesties. The members of the House of Commons were in their gallery, and the envoys of many countries filled the diplomatic boxes.

The King, in robes of crimson and gold, delivered the Speech from the Throne in which he stated the policies of his government—an outline which had been prepared by the cabinet.

And now we come to the strange part of this picture of pomp and splendor. The government facing His Imperial Majesty was socialist, all members of the Labor Party.

It was, by and large, the same government which had ruled the country for the last five years, although now reduced to a bare majority by the recent election. It was the same government which carried out a considerable degree of nationalization and inaugurated the so-called "welfare state."

Incongruous? Well, odd to say the least. However, that's not the whole story. Sitting in the gallery with Labor in almost equal numbers were the members of the Conservative Party, headed by Winston Churchill.

In theory these Conservatives are representatives of the "upper classes," but when we stop to check we find that it was the self-same Conservatives who, when in power, laid the foundations for the "welfare state." They are the ones who imposed such taxation that they virtually wiped out the landed aristocracy—and more than a few members of Parliament belonged to that class. Already the Conservatives were operating "left of center."

Then, as the war was drawing to a close the country in a general election decided to try the paces of the Labor Party. So the Socialists came to power and immediately started in on a program of nationalization of industry. They swung much further to the left politically than the Conservatives had been.

In the recent general election the British people rebuked the Socialists for going too far left. Prime Minister Attlee's party just managed to squeeze out a victory, but one which has left it impotent to enact any radical legislation.

That's the reason the speech from the throne made no mention of further nationalization of industry, which the Socialists had promised before election. Prime Minister Attlee, having read the writing on the wall, decided to drop all that, except for steel, which has already been approved by Parliament.

And what is the significance of all this medley of pomp, splendor and socialism? To me it means that, with reasonable give and take, the so-called "class" differences can be worked out reasonably and amicably if the goodwill is present.

SETTLE IT FOR GOOD

Montreal Star

Probably the majority of Canadians would like to see Canada with a flag of its own, readily distinguishable and recognizable as such wherever it is flown. The 1,500 or so designs which swamped the special committee created two sessions ago to examine the whole question may be taken as evidence of public interest in the matter. Not much remains to be done and the public would be well to be glad to get the matter settled.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

WELL, said the Elevator Man, "I see where everybody's climbed on the merry-go-round at Hillside Junction. It's as pretty as a circus with all those yellow posts. And you'll be able to claim you're going around with some of Victoria's leading citizens—if you happen to pass there at the same time they do. It'll be a dizzy social whirl for a lot of folks. And the kids can use it for a roller-skating race course during the slack hours. Mind the step!"

"I can remember," said the Elevator Man, "when horses used to stop for water at that fountain, to fill up for the long haul into town. But Dobbin will have to be pretty quick on the draw to get any water as he goes by now. A drink will be harder to grab than a brass ring, and it won't get you another free ride. And what happens on a foggy night? You might find yourself going around for hours. Mezzanine!"

"The only thing to do," said the Elevator Man, "is for the Council to go the whole way and put a good calliope in the infield. Then we can get the full benefit out of the arrangement. Saturday nights you could take your girl out in the old jolopy and do the circle to 'Waltz Me Around Again Willie' or 'She'll Be Comin' Round the Fountain When She Comes.' I think we're missing a good bet there. Let's jazz up the Junction and go for a spin."

Education—Everybody's Business

THIS IS EDUCATION WEEK, AN annual period set aside to publicize the work of our schools and provide a closer bond between the general public and those citizens whose lives are devoted to furthering the training of children and adults. The slogan that has been chosen is: "Education—Everybody's Business"; and it sums up very aptly the implications of the week now being observed.

Education is everybody's business in the sense that everybody works at acquiring one throughout life, whether consciously or unconsciously. It is also everybody's business in that each man and woman in the community must help in one way or another to provide the schools and teaching necessary for our youth. We are all in the business of educating the younger generation, whether we know it or not, whether we like it or not. It is therefore appropriate that we should have some knowledge of the way in which this education is being imparted, what facts and philosophies are being taught, what personnel and equipment are available to produce the best results.

Education Week is an attempt to meet that need. Visits to schools, demonstrations and other forms of publicity are planned to foster the acquaintance of parents and taxpayers with their local educational facilities. It is an opportunity to "inspect the plant" that should be taken advantage of by every shareholder. It is "everybody's business" not only to encourage the work, but to see that a good job is done.

Stick To Your Bagpipes, Tom

REGARDLESS OF THE RIGHTS OR otherwise of the tiff in the Legislature yesterday afternoon between Premier Johnson and Opposition Leader Winch in respect of the aluminum project and its potential relation to the future of the fishing industry, one aspect of the brief encounter between the two should not pass unnoticed by the general public of this province: It appears that Mr. Winch had wired Senator Tom Reid, former Liberal member of the House of Commons for the important constituency of New Westminster, to find out if he, the Senator, would be willing to come out to British Columbia and repeat the International Salmon Fisheries Commission's objection to the granting of water rights to the aluminum concern. The honorable Senator would come—provided his expenses were paid. There is little more to be said about this incident, of course, except to remind all and sundry that the former federal Liberal member for New Westminster never liked the Coalition arrangement—and his antipathy obviously dies hard. We suggest to him, however, that he stick to his own knitting—or bagpipes—and leave the Legislature of British Columbia to deal with its own purely provincial business. It is fully capable of doing just that, under the able leadership of Mr. Johnson, and the reasonable watch-dog conduct of Mr. Winch and his handful of supporters.

Study Of A 20,000-Year-Old Technique Shows How Man Fashioned Flint Weapons

By Dr. T. A. RICKARD

THE INTERESTING article on this subject appearing in your issue of March 4 prompts me to offer some further information. In the article to which I refer, Mr. John H. Sewell, an amateur archaeologist, is said to have discovered the Indian method of flaking stone or of making stone arrowheads by the use of a piece of antler.

OLD TECHNIQUE

This technique was known in Europe 20,000 years ago; it was used by the Solutreans, a race of primitive people in western Europe. Instead of chipping a stone by means of a harder stone, they adopted pressure instead of percussion.

For this purpose they took a piece of bone or even a piece of hard wood, about half an inch wide, that had been brought to an edge like a dull chisel. But this was not used as a chisel; it was pressed against the stone and at the same time pushed downward. The size of the flake that is detached is proportioned to the pressure exerted. It is surprising what delicate work can be done rapidly by this Solutrean method, which was discovered independently by stone-workers in many parts of the world.

In 1608 Captain John Smith, who will be remembered as the English colonist whose life was saved by a beautiful Indian maiden named Pocahontas, described the manner in which the Indian of Virginia fabricated his arrow-point.

"To make the nock of his Arrow, he hath the tooth of a Beaver, set in a stick, wherewith he grateth it by degrees. His Arrow head he quickly maketh with a little bone, which he ever wearth at his bracer, of the splint of a stone or glasse, in the forme of a hart; and these they glew to the end of their Arrows."

This is quoted from Captain John Smith's little book entitled "A Map of Virginia," published in 1612. The "bracer" probably was a strap on the wrist. He did not grate, or grind, but flaked the stone by means of the piece of bone.

How the method of pressure-flaking might be discovered by primitive man is indicated clearly by the experience of Frank Cushing who, as a boy more than 50 years ago, experimented in the making of arrowheads. He says, in a book published in 1895, that while trying to make a harpoon blade out of the bone handle of a toothbrush, he used flint chips to cut the bone, and when he tried to smooth it afterward by scraping the bone transversely to the edge of the flint, the bone began to cut the flint away. "Not jaggedly, as a hammer-stone would have chipped it, but in long, continuously narrow slipped flakes, wherever the edge was caught by the bone at a certain angle."

FLAKED BY BONE

He never finished the harpoon, but used it at once as an arrow-flaker by tying it with a shoestring to a stick of wood and pressing it at the proper angle on the flint he wished to remove for the shaping of an arrowhead.

In other words, he discovered that the bone flaked the flint instead of the reverse. My friend Theodore Hoover, the elder brother of the ex-President, and formerly professor in Stanford University, amused himself 30 years ago by making arrowheads and spear-points of stone by the aid of this technique.

Rural Members Contribute To A 'Homey' Day In Legislature

By LLOYD BAKER

IT WAS A NICE homey day in the House for the opening of the fourth week of the session Monday and all the talk of an early prorogation has gone the way of all flesh.

With only three speakers for the sitting and no rush of new legislation, it appears the proceedings will continue to the end of the month at least, and maybe to Easter week-end.

Why some newspapers became so excited in the first place over prorogation so soon after the session got under way is a mystery still in this corner.

THE TRIO of speech-makers we heard Monday came from rural B.C.—Glen Braden from Peace River, Tom King from Columbia and Leo Nimsick from Cranbrook.

Not one of the three gave what you might call headline stories, but their small talk made interesting listening.

MELLOW, MR. KING, the general store proprietor from Golden who has been in the House since 1933, was pretty proud of himself and the Coalition in the June elections last year.

He chuckled at the boasts of the C.C.F. before balloting and at the small corner in the Legislative Chamber the Opposition now occupied. One C.C.F.er, he confided, had been quite certain before that his party's strength would double. Instead of that it fell in half.

Sandy-haired Tom wasn't going to say again that he wouldn't be back. He said that last year but the good people of his district "seemed to have other ideas."

TALKING ABOUT the B.C. Power Commission taking over the Columbia Power Company, the soft-voiced Columbia member remembered when Golden got its power from a nearby mill. How times had changed.

"I recall those days well," he mused.

"Remember how you were at the mercy of the mill for electric light? When it got too dark for the watchman to see where he was going the switch was thrown."

"Conditions improved, though. The mill manager's wife got an electric washing machine so the town got power for an hour every morning. Then she got an electric iron and on went the lights for another hour on Tuesdays."

THE PEACE RIVER member, Mr. Braden, is no newcomer to the Legislature although he's not been here since 1945. The C.C.F. held the seat for the last five years only to lose it back to G.B.

He started his speech with a different twist by announcing he represented an area "whose natural resources could liquidate the net debt of the province many times."

MR. BRADEN told the House it was expected soon to have 1,000,000 acres of Peace River land under cultivation soon, and then went on to describe how agriculture was making great strides in this land of his liking.

In 1941 the wheat crop amounted to 1,640,000 bushels. The estimated crop for 1949 was 3,500,000 bushels.

"And Dawson Creek for the second time is the largest primary grain shipping point in the Commonwealth," he boasted.

Farmers were branching out to grass seed production and were winning prizes for these as well as the wheat crops.

The growing of grass and clover had resulted in a thriving honey industry.

"We're winning prizes here, too," he had to admit.

To sum up the farmers' situation he said: "One of them told me just recently the only complaint he had to make was that the income tax people were taking $2,500 from him this year."

MR. NIMSICK, one of the seven C.C.F. members, forgot his party twice during his speech, to the joy of the Coalition members.

Talking about unemployment, the Opposition member said warnings had been issued already by many sound men of the country "who haven't any crazy ideas the Socialists might have."

At another stage he talked about "nonsensical Socialists."

ESQUIMALT COUNCILLORS DECIDE TO TAKE RAISE

A by-law providing a 50-per-cent increase in pay for Esquimalt councillors was introduced and given first three readings at a municipal council meeting Monday night.

The by-law will be brought forward for fourth and final reading at the next council meeting, March 20.

The new statute will provide the six councillors with annual remuneration of $300 each. In previous years, pay for councillors has been $200 a year.

The reeve's salary remains unchanged under the new by-law. He received a 50-per-cent increase in 1949, however, which brought his annual remuneration to $900.

By-law to increase councillors' salaries was introduced by Councillor James Ellis and seconded by Councillor G. R. Guillemaud.

There was no debate.

To Export Pit Props

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe told the Commons Monday today there is "some hope" that sales of maritime pit props, used in mining, can be made in Europe. Contracts will be concluded just as soon as European countries with which Canadian trade commissioners have been negotiating indicate they are ready to sign, he added.

Higgins, St. John's, Threatens To Quit Over Freight Rates

OTTAWA (CP)—A Progressive Conservative member from Newfoundland threatened in the Commons Monday to resign his seat if the federal government does not live up to its agreement on freight rates for Newfoundland.

Gordon Higgins, lawyer-member of one of the first delegations to discuss union terms with Canada, said he would give up his seat—St. John's East—and do all he could to get the new province to secede from Confederation if the government did not abide by the union terms.

Under the Confederation arrangement, he said the Maritime Freight Rates Act was to apply to Newfoundland. However, the Board of Transport Commissioners had ruled, recently that the union terms did not bar the Canadian National Railways from exercising its usual discretion on rates applying to the Newfoundland area.

Later, Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland told reporters here he is carrying the province's fight for a better deal in freight rates to the federal cabinet and expressed confidence the controversial issue will never sever the bonds that now tie the rest of this country with the island province.

PROCEDURE QUESTION

Outside the House, Mr. Higgins said he was not too clear on what procedure would have to be followed for Newfoundland to leave Confederation. Possibly, the province could follow a reverse procedure to that which brought it into the union.

Prospectors Explored Shore Of Lake Superior

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

What does a prospector think about in the long days and nights in the wilderness, between the clanks of his pick and the splashes of his paddle?

Sometimes, if you're listening at the current convention in Toronto of the Prospectors' and Developers' Association, you may imagine that he thinks only in a strange geologic language of hematites, pyrites, foldjoints and galvanometers.

But then comes an address like that of Jack Macfarlane that brings a whiff of the outdoors right into the convention hall.

Macfarlane has prospected in most parts of Canada and last summer he and his brother William, of Halleybury, Ont., made a 1,500-mile trip by canoe and afoot along the north shore of Lake Superior, looking for pitchblende, the stuff from which comes uranium and atom bombs.

Only Tito Candidates In Yugoslav Election

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

BELGRADE (AP)—Guess who will win Yugoslavia's first general election in five years?

The answer is simple: Marshal Josip Broz Tito and his Communist-dominated "People's Front" party, of course. Not since Man O' War pounded down the stretch in 1920 has there been a surer bet.

And the reason is equally simple. There's no competition for Tito and his party in a country which once had as many parties as it now has republics. The election is set for March 26.

Although Yugoslavia's new election laws permit anyone who can collect 100 signatures to become a candidate for Parliament, there has been no sign yet of any opposition emerging to challenge those who have the blessing of the "People's Front."

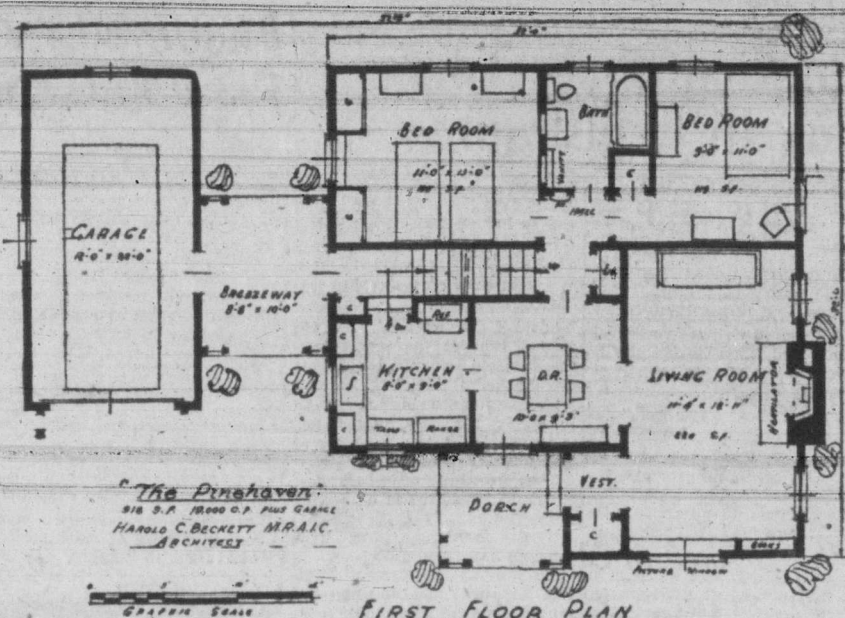

Under the rules, any person, male or female, over the age of 18 has the right to vote. The 'teen-agers fought in the hills and in the woods during the Second World War and Yugoslavia decided that if they were old enough to fight they also were old enough to vote.

The voters will choose a total of 405 members of the Lower House of Parliament and 215 of the Upper House, picking them from their own districts.

There are no literacy requirements. A voter doesn't have to know how to read or write.

The regulations provide that the voter, upon entering the balloting room, is given a small rubber ball. He drops this into a cushioned box for the candidate of his choice—or in an opposition box.

At day's end the rubber balls are counted to determine the margin of victory. Best guess here is that it will be about 97 or 98 per cent in favor of the people's government.

President Of Big Milling Co. Finds God Makes Good Partner

A simple, spiritual formula revitalized the business of Perry Hayden. And that isn't all. It made him a dynamic and forceful, as well as a radiantly happy individual. Mr. Hayden is president of the Hayden Flour Mills, Tecumseh, Mich. Henry Ford helped him too as this interesting story relates.

BY PERRY HAYDEN
I recommend taking God in partnership. He has blessed my business, my family and me, spiritually, physically and financially. Very few are the mornings when I do not take time to get up before the rest of the household and to ask God to lead the way during the day.

In 1930, when I was 29 years old, I attended a Christian Endeavor conference in Columbus, Ohio. The speaker on Saturday afternoon spoke directly to me. It was a challenge to surrender all I had to the Lord and let Him work in and through me.

I wanted to be a successful flour miller. I wanted to make money. But how could I make money and go to China as a missionary at the same time? It was something I couldn't understand until I waited till after the meeting and asked the speaker what he would advise me to do. He knew my situation, and gave me some mighty good advice.

"Give All You Can." He said, "Perry, you go home and make all the money you can make, honestly. Then you give all the money you can give, and mind the Lord." I have followed that advice for the past fifteen years, and they have been the happiest years possible. Two years later, someone mailed me a little booklet on "Tithing." I had not heard of it before, but it sounded reasonable and I began to practice it. It brought happiness and wealth, just as God promised it would.

AN INTERESTING SERMON
My family business got into the "black" again, and we were making just fair progress. I heard an interesting sermon. A student preacher brought the message that morning and his text was John 12:24—"Verily, verily I say unto you, except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone, but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit."

It was wheat planting time in Michigan. Being a miller, and being interested in actually proving God in a rather unique way, I was led to do something the following Thursday that has since been heard of all the way around the world.

I had a few kernels of wheat actually planted, a cubic inch measure. There were just 360 kernels in the little measure. And it takes 2,150 cubic inches to make a bushel, so you can see how small a beginning this wheat project actually had.

When we planted the wheat Sept. 26, 1940, on a plot four feet by eight feet, I told those who were present that in 1941 we were going to "tith" the crop, and replant it.

In 1941 we cut the "world's smallest wheatfield" with a sickle, cut the heads off with a pair of shears, and threshed it with a carpet-beater, and blew out the chaff with lung power. The result was a crop of fifty cubic inches! We immediately turned over the tenth to the local Quaker Church, and replanted the remaining forty-five cubic inches in September 1941.

In 1942 we cut the second crop and found the yield was 35 fold, or 70 pounds. Again, we "tithed" the wheat and replanted the remaining 63 pounds on land that, for the third year in succession, had been furnished by Henry Ford, who owned a large farm near Tecumseh.

In 1943, this acre of land yielded 16 bushels from the one bushel of seed. Henry Ford himself came out to see the wheat cut. Not only that, but Henry Ford again furnished land for the fourth crop.

In 1944, this crop on 14 acres yielded 380 bushels. Again, the tenth of the crop was "tithed" and the remaining cleaned and replanted. Henry Ford furnished the land for the fifth crop. It was 230 acres.

In the summer of 1945 a fleet of 40 combines one day was sent out to the wheat field by Ford and threshed the crop of Dynamic Kernels. The yield was 5,555 bushels. The value of this little fifth crop at the market price, of wheat of $1.55 per bushel, when harvested, was $8,610.25. The tithe of $861.03 went to the Friends Church who, in turn, gave it to the Tecumseh Hospital.

And now comes the thrilling outcome of this demonstration. After Henry Ford turned over the fifth crop of 5,555 bushels and it was tithed, the 5,000 bushels of seed remaining were sold to 276 farmers, representing 30 religious faiths and creeds, who planted this seed on 2,666 acres, agreeing at the time to tithe the 1946 crop to their own church.

By proclamation of Governor Kelly of Michigan, Aug. 1, 1946, was declared Biblical Wheat Day. On that day we celebrated the sixth and final harvest of 72,150 bushels.

No Streetcars On Brooklyn Bridge
NEW YORK (CP)—Trolley service across the Brooklyn Bridge ended Monday. The last car, crowded with 104 sightseers and sentimentalists, started the final run as fireworks were set off and a bugler sounded "taps."

The service, started in 1883 just three months after the opening of the bridge, was ended to make room for a new vehicular lane.

Shorter Week May Call For Additions To Force

Problem of reorganizing the city police department to fit in with the 40-hour week to be effective July 1, will be studied by the board of police commissioners Thursday afternoon at 2.

The board is now faced with either employing more men or spreading the present personnel of the department to fill in the hole.

It is believed, however, that the board will have to add to the force strength as it has been reported before that present numbers are the minimum required under the old 44-hour-week setup. While the 5 per cent blanket pay increase and the five-day week was only awarded to the members of the police union by the arbitration board, the board will consider those who do not belong to the union.

It is likely the others, from inspector up and including those in other positions, will get a 5 per cent increase in pay and the shorter work week. After the previous award given by the arbitration board to the union, the commission awarded the "other ranks" the top $20-monthly raise given to the sergeants and detectives.

Plan Bungalow For Wide Lot

An attractive and economical bungalow suitable for a lot of 75 feet in width is the "Pinhaven" designed by Harold C. Beckett.

If constructed without breezeway and garage, a 50-foot lot would provide a total of 18 feet of side yard. Space around any residence is highly important and a prospective lot purchaser should keep this in mind.

The "Pinhaven" is designed in Early American Colonial with exterior walls of double coursed shingles or cedar shakes, spray painted white. This is inexpensive and makes for very warm construction.

All room sizes utilize joist lengths without waste. A stair to the second floor permits finishing a large bedroom and bath if desired. Excellent closet accommodation and ample wall space for furniture makes this plan most desirable.

Total area is only 162 feet over the minimum of N.H.A. requirements. In keeping with the Colonial character, "Amerwood" or knotty pine finish is suggested for the living and dining-room.

Pleds For Outpatients

A weakness in the hospital insurance scheme was lack of provision for outpatients, said Leo Nimsick, C.C.F.-Cranbrook, in the Legislature Monday.

He thought hospital crowding would be relieved if the insurance plan provided greater services for outpatients.

The Cranbrook member thought too the government should expand its public health nursing service in the outlying areas. This would bring medical attention to smaller centres without compelling long trips to hospitals.

There should be exemption from payment of the hospital insurance premium to all persons whose income was less than $50 a month, Mr. Nimsick continued. This would be consistent with the stand already taken in connection with payment by the government of premiums for old age pensioners.

Sharp Clash Over Alcan's B.C. Plan

Premier Amazed At Senator Reid's Answer To Opposition Leader

The sharpest clash in the current session of the Legislature came Monday over the question of the Aluminum Company of Canada setting up a $300,000,000 plant in the province.

It centred around Senator Thomas Reid's interest in the proposal as chairman of the International Salmon Fisheries Commission.

Senator Reid, whose home is in New Westminster, has opposed the aluminum company's plans in speeches in the Senate and from public platforms. His objection has been the possible injury to the fishing industry resulting from the use of B.C. waterways by the company.

Last week in the Legislature Opposition Leader Harold Winch asked if the Senator could be asked to appear before a House committee and outline his objections in detail.

Premier Byron Johnson said no. The Legislature was capable of handling its own affairs without asking advice of any outsider.

WIRED SENATOR

When Monday's sitting of the Legislature opened, the Opposition Leader arose on a question of privilege to notify the House he had wired Senator Reid.

"I have received a letter in return," said Mr. Winch, "and Senator Reid would be pleased to appear before a committee of the Legislature to give support to any statements he has made in opposition to the company establishing in B.C."

"The fisheries commission he heads is most concerned," the Opposition Leader added. "It is our duty to acquire all the information we can on the matter."

Premier Johnson expressed surprise at Mr. Winch's action.

Water Jacket Blows Up, Kills Boy

THREE RIVERS, Que. (CP)—The freak explosion of a kitchen stove water front killed eight-year-old Roland St. Yves and injured two of his brothers and sisters Monday.

The explosion occurred in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alderville St. Yves of the nearby Ste. Ursule Parish. The St. Yves have 17 surviving children.

Slightly injured were Robert, 4; Florent, 6; and Claudette, 3.

"especially in view of what I said last week."

The Premier though he had made himself "quite clear" that the government had no intention of asking Senator Reid to appear before a committee of the House.

Mr. Johnson said hearings on the question had been held at which the Senator could have testified. The commission might have made presentations, but no appeal was made in the 30 days after a decision had been handed down that the company could have a license from the water controller.

"We have no intention of inviting any individual to make representations now," Premier Johnson continued.

"If Senator Reid had anything to say he could have done so at the hearing."

"It seems strange to me that a man occupying the position of Senator would write to the Leader of the Opposition on the question and not communicate his wishes to myself or the minister concerned."

"I am amazed that Mr. Reid would try to have his views imposed on this government in this manner."

Opposition Leader Winch interrupted to say Senator Reid had not come to him. "I wired the senator myself."

"Then I'm amazed that the Leader of the Opposition would take this course," the Premier shot back.

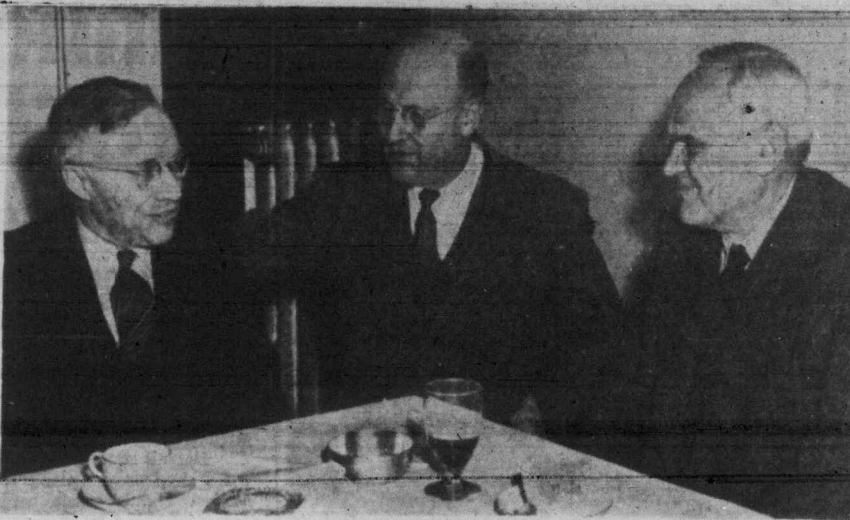

IN BEST INTEREST

Mr. Winch replied he was acting in the best interest of the people. He wanted all the facts made available. Senator Reid was willing to give his side of the argument in detail.

The C.C.F. leader added that the government would have to pay Senator Reid's expenses if he came to testify.

The House laughed at this. Mr. Winch was angry. "This is the kind of facetious treatment I might expect. What are you afraid of?"

Premier Johnson replied he was not afraid of anything. "We know what we're doing."

Member Wants Gasoline Tax For Insurance

An extra tax on gasoline to cover a car accident insurance plan the government should start immediately was Thomas King's main point Monday in his first speech at the present session of the Legislature.

The veteran Coalition member for Columbia advocated last year the government take car accident insurance under its administration.

"I don't want to keep repeating myself, but so many people want a government scheme that I am forced to call for it again," he said. "Farmers' institutes throughout the province as well as many individuals from all parts are in favor."

Mr. King thought the tax on gasoline as premium payments would be fair. The motorist who did not do a great deal of driving was not as big a risk as the car owner who was driving all of the time, and with gasoline consumption as the yardstick, he would not be required to pay as much.

Social Security To Be Widened

HAMILTON (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott said Monday night he is hopeful that next fall's Dominion-Provincial conference will aid in settling difficulties standing in the way of a more adequate program of national social security. He told McMaster University politics club that social security is only one of the desirable objectives of national policy. It must not be allowed to become a dead weight upon the initiative and enterprise of the Canadian people.

MAIDENHEAD, Kent, Eng. (CP)—A speedway track is to be built by the Maidenhead council, but no betting is to be allowed.

Peace River M.L.A. Calls For Chair Of Dentistry

A chair of dentistry at U.B.C. was advocated in the Legislature Monday by Coalition member for Peace River, Glen Braden.

Dentists were in great demand in his part of the country, Mr. Braden stated, claiming 90 per cent of the school children had to do without dental care.

"And there are thousands of adults who must do without treatment," he added.

"We've got a man who does extractions, but we don't want all of our teeth pulled out. We want them looked after," he said.

If dentistry were taught at the university, many young men would find a good livelihood in a profession needing representatives in many parts of the province.

REDISTRIBUTION

Mr. Braden was among the several members this session who have called for redistribution in the matter of representation in the Legislature. He was the only member for Peace River, an area covering 53,000 square miles and containing 20,000 people.

"Many other northern constituencies are too large, also. One member cannot cover the whole district he represents," the Peace River man stated.

Mr. Braden said the people of the Peace River were disappointed to hear the government was considering extending the P.G.E. from Squamish to North Vancouver before it was extended northward.

"Perhaps you will reconsider," he said, looking at Premier Byron Johnson. "We think there would be greater value in bringing the railway into the Peace River first."

The member said an oil pipeline from the Peace River was a "must." Six wells had been drilled and there were indications his district would become a rich oil field.

MILL RATE SHOULD HOLD

Esquimalt's mill rate should not be increased this year, Reeve A. I. Thomas told members of his municipal council at a meeting Monday night.

Although the municipality is faced with mounting costs, the present tax rate of 45 mills should not be exceeded, the reeve said.

It would be unfair, he told council, for district ratepayers to have to carry a tax load any heavier than that which they now bear.

Vancouver Leafs Nudge Alberni

VANCOUVER—Building up an early lead and holding off a closing rally by Alberni Athletics, Canadian champion Vancouver Clover Leafs edged the island champions 55 to 51 in the opening game of the B.C. senior men's basketball best-of-five playoffs here Monday night.

Clubs clash in the second game tonight, following which the series moves to Alberni. The island winners won the toss and if a fifth game is required to determine the champions it will be played on their floor.

Leafs took an early 10 to 2 lead and were never headed. Alberni closed fast in the dying minutes of the game as they whittled an 18-point Clover lead down to four points in less than six minutes.

Alberni came close to overhauling the Leafs when Harry Kermode and Porky Andrews tossed in a pair of field goals early in the second quarter making the score 21 to 20.

COSTLY REST

Andrews left the floor with barely two minutes left in the first half, and Clover Leafs took advantage of the ex-professional's rest by popping in eight quick points to lead 31 to 22 at the half. From there the Leafs played the rest of the game.

Alberni hung on through the third period matching the champions basket for basket failing to come through only on the free shots. The three-quarter score was 49 to 37.

With minutes to play the Leafs had stretched their lead to 55 to 42. Then with Kermode and Andrews coming to life the Athletics managed nine points in a stretch drive that saw the winners held scoreless.

High man for the Islanders was Andrews, 13 points, while guard, Sandy Robertson led the Leafs with 12.

Teams and scores follow:
Alberni—Andrews 13, Durante 9, Sykes 9, Kermode 9, Buchanan 6, Forrest 1, Lynn, Timlach, Hill 3.
Clover Leafs—Pomfret 8, Haas 6, Pickell 5, Robertson 12, Weber 9, Scarr 2, Kakken 2, Mulhern 4, Hartwell 4.

Bays Grab Lead In Soccer Loop

YACHTING—The Interclub Junior Soccer League games saw Oak Bay take over the number one position by virtue of a 1 to 0 decision over Vic High Greens, and the Reds moved into second place as a result of a 2 to 2 tie with an improved Esquimalt eleven.

Bob Cross scored the only goal of the Oak Bay-Greens tilt early in the second half as the winners held a slight advantage with the wind at their backs.

In the other game, the wind and sun played an important part in the final score. The Reds, playing with the wind and their opponents hampered by the sun in their eyes, were not lax in gaining an early 2 to 0 lead by the halfway mark. Barry Jenner and Art Fletcher were the marksmen.

After the changeover, it was a different story, however, and centre-forward Pete Doherty rapped in two quick goals to leave the tilt in a stalemate.

SURPRISES MARK BRIER CURLING

Alberta's Cliff Manahan Rules Favorite; Manitoba Drops Two

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Alberta's Cliff Manahan today moved into a good spot to win his third Dominion curling championship.

The veteran Manahan showed his championship calibre yesterday by winning two straight games and hurtling into the top bracket with the surprising Nova Scotia and Ontario rinks, who won both their games.

Manitoba, picked by many to bring the province its third Macdonald Brier, was apparently off form. It lost both games.

Ontario, Nova Scotia and Alberta were tied in first place with two victories each as the second round in the national title contest swung into action today. New Brunswick, Quebec, Northern Ontario and British Columbia were tied for fourth spot with one victory and one defeat, while Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Manitoba were even in last position with two losses and no victories to their credit.

Manahan curled brilliantly last night to easily defeat youthful Jim Vance of New Brunswick, 12 to 9. In his first draw, Manahan made his final shot count to squeeze by Northern Ontario, 13 to 12.

Star Outfielder Predicts He'll Have Big Season

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—A year ago this month Joe DiMaggio's entire baseball career was shrouded in doubt. Today the great New York Yankee outfielder is in such fine shape he feels he can play on indefinitely.

DiMaggio today is his old self—genial, gracious and eager to please. No autograph hound departs without obtaining Joe's signature. No camera fiend gets away without his picture of the Yankee star. And no reporter leaves without getting a sincere, honest reply to his query.

He has practically forgotten the pain and untold suffering caused by an inflamed right heel that stubbornly refused to yield to treatment and care of some of the best medical men in the field.

In the pink of condition after a restful winter in his native San Francisco, the 35-year-old DiMaggio today predicted a fine season for himself.

PREDICTS FULL SCHEDULE

"The way I feel now," he said, "I'm going to play a full 154 games, something I've been able to do only once in 11 years. Honestly, I never felt better in my life. My legs and body are strong. My heel is in perfect condition. In fact, it feels as though nothing ever has happened to it."

Joe hasn't spared himself a bit during the first week of conditioning. Except for throwing, the $100,000 star has worked as hard as the most eager rookie in camp. He weighs 197 pounds stripped and would like to add three more by opening day.

Cougars Hope To Break Loss Streak

With the club roster down to 12 men Victoria Cougars take on Vancouver Canucks on the mainland tonight in a game postponed from Jan. 13.

Cougars will be out to break a 14-game losing streak while the Canucks will be shooting for fourth place in the tight northern division Coast Hockey League playoff scramble.

A victory for the Canucks will vault them over the idle Seattle Ironmen. Portland and Tacoma clash in the only other northern division game.

Jerry Fodey will be back in the nets for the Cougars tonight but Eddie Mazur will be missing from the line-up. He suffered a cut tendon at Tacoma Saturday and is out for the year.

North American championships, performed excellently except in the last compulsory figure, which gave him a low mark.

Walcott Back In Picture

After scoring seven knockdowns, heavyweight Jersey Joe Walcott was awarded technical knockout over young Omelio Agramonte, Cuba, in the seventh round of their bout at Madison Square Garden. Agramonte is shown down for last time as Walcott steps lightly around him.

VICTORIA ADMITTED TO INTERCITY BOXLA LOOP

Victoria now is officially in the Intercity Box Lacrosse League, being granted a franchise at a meeting of the Intercity League commission in Vancouver Monday night.

Other teams are Adanacs, Salmonbellies, Burrards, Richmond and Indians.

Delegates from the Salmonbellies voted against the Victoria application.

The meeting decided that four teams would qualify for post-season playoffs but made little progress with the league schedule.

Tonight the Greater Victoria Box Lacrosse Association will hold a meeting in the British Public Schools Club at 8, to which all teams are requested to send delegates.

A meeting of players will be called by Arnold Ferguson in the near future to elect officials of the intercity club and discuss plans for the season.

BASEBALL IN HEALTHY CONDITION—CHANDLER

TAMPA, Fla. (UP)—Commissioner A. B. Chandler today predicted another banner season for baseball and said the game "is in the healthiest condition" since he took office five years ago.

"My job is to keep it that way," he added, and then left no doubt as to who is running the game, lock, stock and barrel.

"They hired me to do a job, to run baseball," he said. "That is what I have been doing and what I am going to continue to do."

Last spring, he recalled, the sport was in jeopardy. Mexican League jumpers Danny Gardella, Max Lanier and Fred Martin had damage suits on file which threatened the foundation of the game became the constitutionality of the reserve clause of baseball contracts was at stake.

Then there also was the Department of Justice investigation into the possibility that baseball was violating the anti-trust laws because of its restrictions on radio broadcasting.

Tie With Wings Gives Montreal Hockey Lift

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens last night took sole possession of third place in National Hockey League standings, tying Detroit Red Wings 2 to 2 in the only clash scheduled.

The one point the Habitants garnered broke a deadlock with New York Rangers. Detroit continues to lead the pack with 74 points, eight more than second-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

In last night's tussle before 14,341 fans at Detroit, Marty Pavelich's third-period goal saved "Sid Abel Night" for the Red Wings.

Abel, popular team captain, was presented with an automobile by fans in a pre-game ceremony. The fans were rewarded as Abel bagged his 31st goal in the middle period.

Ted Lindsay, second youngest member of Detroit's ace attack line, leads the scoring race with 20 goals and 43 assists for a total of 63 points.

Abel has a strong hold on second place with 59 points, three ahead of Gordie Howe who completes a Detroit three-man line at the top of the list.

Most penalized club is Toronto with 698 minutes in the house-gow.

Bill Durnan of Montreal still leads the goalies in the league with 130 goals against in 58 games for an average of 2.24. Harry Lumley of Detroit is next.

Name Commercial Hockey League Titlist Tonight

The Commercial Hockey League draws to a close tonight, but before the final horn blows at approximately 11:30 at the Memorial Arena, the loop's championship team remains to be decided.

The field has been reduced from six to two teams since play opened last November, but the two squads will be tossing everything into their respective battles in order to win the Coy Cup, which will be presented to the champions.

Douglas Tire, currently enjoying a point lead, tackle the rugged Navy sextette in the opening game, and this will probably turn out to be the deciding fixture. The Fishermen's Co-ops, challengers for the title, have a much easier job as they stack up against the last-place Brotherhood of Papermakers in the final contest.

Opening game of the card at 7 pits together the Hotelmen, who gained the final playoff position, and the fifth-place Civil Service outfit.

R. McFARLANE SETS RECORDS AT TRACK MEET

Western Varsity Star Dominates Montreal Events

MONTREAL (CP)—Ireland's John Joe Barry Monday night won the mile and Western's Bob McFarlane copped both the 500 and 1,000-yard runs in the Canadian Legion's fourth annual Dominion indoor track championship meet at the Forum.

Nine records fell in the big meet. Bob McFarlane, ace runner of the University of Western Ontario at London, set several records himself in winning the 500 open. He also defeated Mal Whitfield of Dayton, O., who holds the 800-metre Olympic record, by running the distance in 58 seconds flat.

Less than 30 minutes earlier, the big Western star had taken the 1,000 yards, also in record time.

Barry, running out of Villanova College, Philadelphia, took the mile in the slow time of 4:39.1 with Horace Ashenfelter of Penn State finishing second.

Meet record for the legion mile is 4:16.6 set by Gil Dadds three years ago.

McFarlane, who failed to qualify in the 800-metre Olympic run in 1948 when Whitfield won, smashed the old 500-yard meet record of 58.4, the Canadian indoor open of 58.4, the Canadian indoor native of 1:10.8 and the provincial native record of 1:02.9.

McFarlane finished out his evening by helping brother Don and two others win the one mile relay for Western with a record time of 3:32.4.

The Jockey Club reports that a total of 8,485 foals of 1949 have been registered as of January 30, 1950. (In 1949 there were 8,819 foals registered.)

FROM THE FANSTAND

By PETE SALLAWAY, Times Sports Editor

Athletes often bemoan the work of referees but how often the performers themselves are guilty of unwarranted criticism of the officials through a complete lack of knowledge of the rules. It is a pretty safe bet that few athletes are completely up with the rules of the particular sport in which they are participating. There are always a few who can quote the rules verbatim but they are strictly in the minority.

Majority of athletes have just a smattering of the rules and are definitely in no position to argue with an official who is well-versed in the code of playing regulations.

Referee Knew His Rules

Sunday's senior cup football match between Heaney's and the Navy provided a perfect example. Late in the game, with Heaney's enjoying a 1 to 0 lead, Navy were awarded a penalty kick. Player taking the kick struck the crossbar with his shot, then ran in and pushed the rebound into the net. When the referee disallowed the goal the Navy players put up a terrific beef. It was all unnecessary as the rule governing such a play is quite clear.

Just for the benefit of those who are not familiar with the rule I quote from the official laws of the game:

"The player taking the kick must kick the ball forward; he shall not play the ball a second time until it has been touched or played by another player. Bear in mind that if the ball hits the goal post or bar and rebounds into play, the player who took the penalty kick must not play it again until it has been touched by another player."

Hockey Captains Pick All-Stars

Captains of the six clubs in the National Hockey League have come up with their all-star team selection. In the combined opinions of Sid Abel, Ted Kennedy, Butch Bouchard, Buddy O'Connor, Milt Schmidt and Doug Bentley, the N.H.L. All-Stars are: First team, goal, Bill Durnan; defence, Leo Reine and Gus Mortson; forwards, Maurice Richard, Sid Abel and Ted Lindsay; second team, goal, Chuck Rayner; defence, Ken Reardon, Jack Stewart and Bill Quackenbush (tied); forwards, Edgar LaPrade and Paul Ronty (tied), Roy Conacher and Harry Watson (tied) and Syd Howe.

The team captains also named Rayner as the most valuable player; Bert Olmstead the outstanding rookie; George Gravel the best referee and Edgar LaPrade the most gentlemanly player.

Something New For Basement Golfers

For you golfers who like to practice shots in the basement or backyard, here's something new. A polyethylene golf ball follows the same line of flight as a regulation sphere when hit squarely, hooked or sliced, but travels only about one-tenth as far. The lightweight ball will not mar walls or damage screens or windows, yet is tough, durable, resilient and washable and retains its shape. A full wood or an iron shot travels about 10 per cent of the normal distance, or from 15 to 25 yards.

Tag Team Bout To Highlight Saturday Card

Matchmaker Rocky Brooks announced today his wrestling card at the Armories Saturday night will feature a tag team match.

First bout is scheduled for 8.30. In one corner for the top event will be Paavo Katonen and Jack O'Reilly. Partnered against them will be Ted Bell and Pierre LaBelle. This affair should produce action plus.

Brooks has yet to line up his performers for a second head-line bout.

In the opener, Roy Speller, Victoria, will tackle Tyke Myren, Vancouver. This will be a one-half 20-minute match.

Sooke Nears Island Title

Sooke last night took a stranglehold on the Vancouver Island senior C men's basketball title by whipping Chemainus 53 to 39 at Sooke.

It was the first game of a home-and-home, total-point series. Second game is scheduled for Chemainus.

M. Michelsen paced the winners with 26 points. Sooke led 24 to 17 at half time.

Teams and scorers follow: Sooke—Stoltz 1, Dadds 9, Gilly 4, M. Michelsen 26, D. Michelsen 9, E. Michelsen 2, Butler 2, Piercey, Cadin, Potier, Chemainus—Batten 4, Allen 6, Maylor 7, McKay, Halloran 2, Zisk 2, Smith 6.

United Players To Meet Tonight

A special meeting of the Victoria United soccer players will be held tonight, following the usual Tuesday practice at Athletic Park. Secretary Charles Faulkner has important business to discuss and he asks that as many players as possible make an effort to attend.

On Saturday, United renew Coast League activity. They meet the strong Vancouver City at Athletic Park.

'Y' Swim Team In Time Trials

Flying "Y" swim club will hold time trials at the "Y" pool tomorrow night for those wishing to make the trip to Vancouver Saturday night.

The local swimmers are slated to meet the University of British Columbia team on that date. Junior members will work out at 7 with seniors at 8.

Ball Players Must Read Up On New Code Of Rules

NEW YORK (AP)—Two minutes after spring training starts the baseball players in general and the pitchers in particular will realize they are operating this season under a new set of rules.

Baseball's player rules were rephrased and redefined during the last winter. Both the majors and minors co-operated on the task.

The change which the pitchers will realize first is the one which says the mound must be exactly 15 inches high and must slope gradually toward the baselines. In the past the mounds varied from park to park and from day to day, depending on who was to pitch.

Another rule defines the strike area now as the space over home plate between the hitter's arm pits and knees "when he assumes his natural stance." A footnote points out that the natural stance for some batters is a crouching one, which is legal.

The crouch could cut the strike zone by as much as 25 per cent and it is expected that many up-right batters of last year will adopt a new stance this year to heckle the hurlers.

CATCHER MUST WATCH
Another altered rule provides the catcher must keep one foot in the receiver's box when the pitcher is issuing an intentional base on balls. Another makes the umpire the judge if unsportsmanlike conduct has prevailed when a base runner slides into an infielder in hopes of breaking up a double play.

If the umpire decides that unfair tactics were used he now has the power to call the batter out even if the ball did not reach the base in time.

Two minor changes say that a starting hurler must go five innings of a completed game to receive credit for a victory and that the pitchers are not permitted to apply resin to the ball or to their uniforms.

Midget Hockey Title Won By Nanaimo Club

Nanaimo Saturday won the Vancouver Island midget hockey championship by defeating the Victoria All-Star club, 6 to 5, in the second game of a total-point series.

Nanaimo won the opening game in Victoria 2 to 1, and took the round 8 to 6.

Winners led from the start, scoring three goals in the first period with Victoria short-handed due to a penalty. Victoria rallied in the second stanza to out-score the winners, four goals to two, but could not make up the deficit though pressing hard in the final minutes of the third period.

Owls Take Title In Easy Fashion

Nanaimo White Owls are truly worthy wearers of the Vancouver Island senior B men's basketball crown.

They proved their right to the title in decisive fashion last night at the Victoria High School gymnasium by spotting Knott and Elford an early lead and then coming from far back to whip the local champions, 53 to 44, to capture both games in the total-point series and take the round, 104 to 85.

Trailing by 10 points on the series as the game started because of a 51 to 41 defeat at Nanaimo in the first game of the final, Knott and Elford started off in fine style and appeared on their way to an easy romp over the up-island titleholders.

Within a few minutes the gasmen had erased the 10-point Nanaimo lead and were on even terms in the series.

But the Owls had other ideas. And fighting back furiously they held Knott and Elford even the remainder of the half and were leading by one point in the total-point count at the half.

VISITORS PULL AWAY
The lead changed hands three times in the opening minutes of the second half before Nanaimo started to pull away. By the seven-minute mark of the half Nanaimo had regained their 10-point bulge and coasted in from there. Knott and Elford literally fell apart before the steady play of the up-islanders and were a highly disorganized team at the finish.

Norm Waugh and Dink Pearson paced the Owls, Waugh hitting the hoop consistently with one-handers for 18 points and Pearson pumping home 17 from all angles. Elmer Matthews notched 14 points to top the gasmen.

COLLEGE, ARROWS WIN
In preliminary games two city squads advanced further along the island playoff trail. St. Louis College defeated

Courtenay, 47 to 39, in the first game of the island intermediate A boys' final and will carry the eight-point margin into the second game to be played at Courtenay.

Arrow Furniture romped to an easy 42 to 13 victory over Courtenay in an island junior girls' final. Second game of this series is also slated for later in the week at Courtenay.

Teams and scorers follow:
Nanaimo—Pearson 17, Manson 6, Broadhead 4, Samson 4, Waugh 18, Darcy, Galloway, Negrin, Whitman.
Knott & Elford—Mathews 14, McMillan 12, Ellis 16, Booth 4, Duncan 7, Allen, Ireland 3.
Courtenay—Graham 13, Hogle 10, McEvoy 4, Dalby 3, Foss, McDonald, McLaughlin.

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW T.V. May Be Why Chaplin Spending Publicity Cash

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The town has been buzzing with reports that Charlie Chaplin is spending $500,000 to improve his relations with the public. Now there appears a reason for the move—television.

There have been indications that that famed comic would like to follow the success of Hopalong Cassidy and release his old films to video, thus creating a new and widespread audience.

'Lust For Gold' Stars Ida Lupino

Ida Lupino, who characterizes a scheming woman scrambling for secret treasure in Arizona's Superstition Mountains in "Lust For Gold" which opens at the Capitol Theatre today, had to experience all the hardships of a serial queen during the filming of the picture. Miss Lupino was subjected to brutal physical punishment in her quest for the treasure over the rugged Arizona terrain. Her co-star is Glenn Ford.

Fox Theatre
Showing tonight at the Fox Theatre is the exciting drama "Edward, My Son," starring Spencer Tracy and Deborah Kerr. At 9:05, the Fox Theatre Dollar-a-Minute movie quiz will be presented.

Jack Benny: This is the last birthday I'm going to celebrate. Reagan has been dating flower-eating Piper Laurie, who plays his daughter in the film. Quebec-born Glenn Ford and Eleanor Powell made one of their infrequent public appearances to see Sarah Churchill and Jeffrey Lynn in "The Philadelphia Story" at the Biltmore.

Emlyn Williams, British playwright-actor, will stay in Hollywood for his second U.S. film after he finishes "Three Husbands." He'll make "The Dungeon" with Academy contenders Bette Davis and Richard Widmark, wife of Toronto's Fletcher Markle, and John Ireland. Williams returns to Britain in May to do a play.

ODD NOTES
Mary Pickford, who is living in New York while Buddy Rogers pursues his air career, is reported homesick for California. Maria Toren wants to bring her four-year-old nephew to the U.S. but can't adopt him because she is unmarried.

Movies Censored
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Movies are not a part of the press and therefore are subject to censorship, U.S. District Judge M. Neil Andrews ruled today. His decision was on a suit growing out of Atlanta censorship of the film, "Lost Boundaries."

The program was entitled: "It Happened Tomorrow."

BRENDA SIGRIST and Brian Burbridge are senior students at Central Junior High. They didn't know that this is Education Week, but they do know they are getting an education that suits them. What's more, they have made their plans for the parts they intend to play when they are grown up. They're using school as a way toward their goals.

Brenda wants to be a veterinary surgeon.

"My favorite subject is science and I love animals," she says. "I want to take a special science course and I'm doing my best to get good grades so I can get to university."

Brian intends to join the Air Force when he's got his senior matric. He's in the air cadets and hopes to put in some flying time that will help him as air crew and later as pilot. He likes industrial arts, science and social studies and figures he learns a lot in these classes.

BOTH BRENDA and Brian think the schools are doing a good job. They're ready for and want a measure of discipline, and they think they get it now. Both are prepared to boost the family income on which they rely for higher education.

"I'm willing to help work my way through," says Brenda, speaking of part-time university employment.

"I'll be out working," adds Brian. "I start another after-school job next week."

This is the human material for which Greater Victoria spent $2,047,020 on education last year. The city and municipal taxpayers met $1,424,126 of that amount. In the city itself, the average taxpayer—owner of a home and lot assessed at $3,500—paid about $70 to meet educational costs.

THE CHARGES for free education are high on the property owner. Last year in Victoria they amounted to more than 35 cents of the tax dollar. But if the costs hurt, criticism against them is not that too much is being paid for education. The criticism is more often that the money is being raised from the wrong source.

No matter how it is collected, it's still the tax dollar taken from the citizen's pocket. And the municipalities can use their share of the provincial three per cent sales tax for schools if they want to.

PEOPLE ARE thinking, and thinking hard, about education—not just its costs. They want its opportunities for their children.

The man of 75, who started to work from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. in an English brickyard when he was 11, is emphatic.

"I never had an education," he says. "But I didn't want my kids to go through what I went through. We kept them in school as long as they'd stay."

Peter Miller keeps his eyes on the road as he's driving his bus, but that concentration doesn't interfere with his opinion on education.

"That's one of the things that's absolutely essential. Course, when you get to 45 you can see these things. If you could only drive it into the kids."

A. T. HUNKIN, principal of Central Junior High, explains the new method:

"Nowadays we're trying to get the youngsters working under their own power—under their own steam. There's less outside pressure. It works out pretty well with most of them."

"The idea now is to treat school as life itself, not just preparation for life. We're training more for leadership, too. Duties in school are distributed to encourage that development."

"I think life is more interesting for the pupils now. They know more about what's going on and have fewer complexes. We try to recognize the individual more as an individual. If he's not too bright, he's still entitled to respect as an individual."

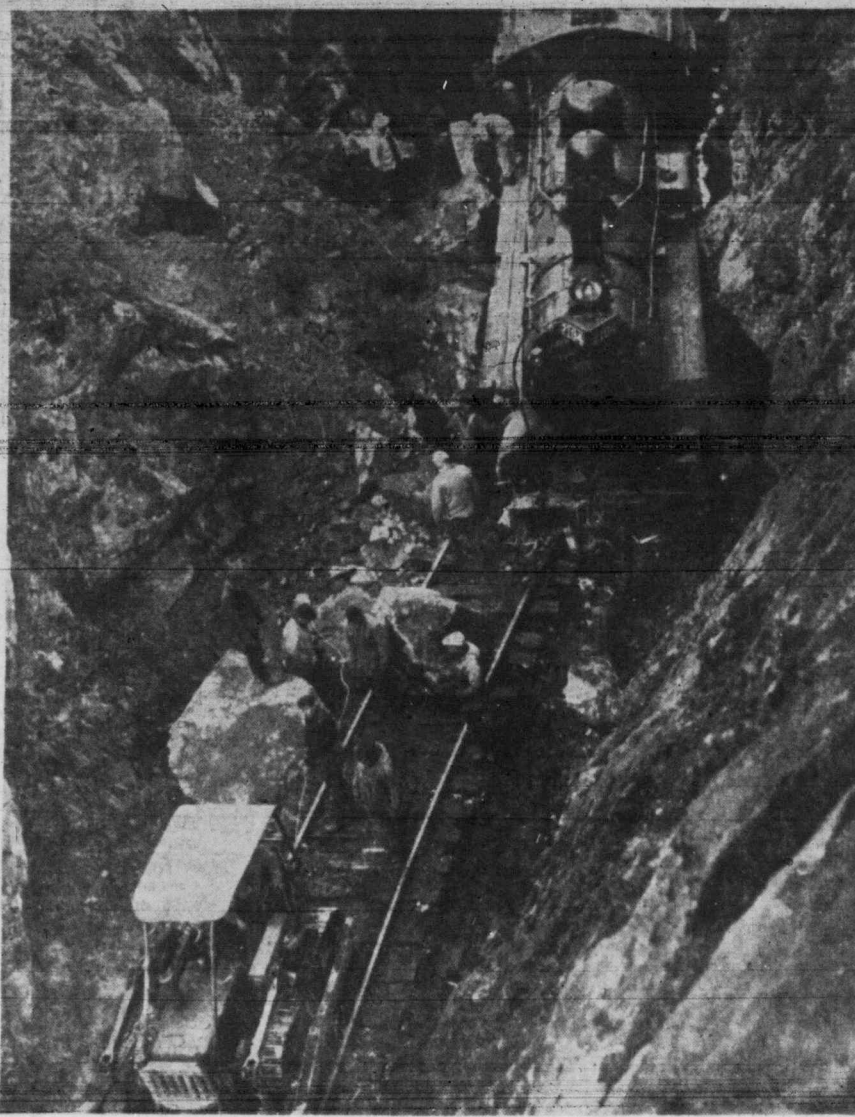

"We may be missing a little bit in thoroughness in some subjects, but we're gaining in overall development."

THE PROVINCIAL picture is presented briefly by Education Minister W. T. Straith:

"The education department is committed to a policy of teaching the children of this province not only how they might live, but also how they might make a living."

"We try to present this dual type of education on a basis of equality for all children in the province, no matter where they may live, and without regard to race, creed or color."

"In a province like British Columbia, where people are necessarily scattered, equalization of opportunity is not easy. But we have devised a number of methods by which isolated children in the province have facilities for education which are as close as possible to those in the cities as possible."

B.C. RESTAURATEURS WANT MEALS FREED OF SALES TAX

The Canadian Restaurant Association (B.C. region) today asked the provincial cabinet to remove the 3 per cent sales tax from restaurant meals.

Three reasons for the request presented by a delegation from the association were given:

"1. If the principle of exempting foodstuffs in all other forms from this tax is accepted as valid, and it seems a proper conception, it is only fair and right to likewise exempt restaurant meals;

"2. Collection of the tax is costly to restaurant operators far beyond the return to the government because most people eat during short periods of time creating a business peak common only to the restaurant business;

"3. The tax induces people to restrict the size of meals they order to keep the price under 51 cents and thereby escape the levy."

The restaurant men claimed there were thousands of citizens who consumed most of their food in public eating places. The tax discriminated against them. Also there were many old-age pensioners and others living on small incomes living in hotels and rooming houses who had to eat "out."

It was claimed by the group that the tax required cafe workers to make out 25 per cent more checks for meals than was necessary before it came into effect.

"It is submitted," the delegation added, "that if the government saw fit to remove the sales tax from restaurant meals the loss of revenue from this source would be counteracted by the creation of a formidable and gratifying volume of public esteem and good will, both with the restaurant public and the operating personnel."

P.O. Workers Seek Use Of Site

City Council today was asked to allow workers employed at the Post Office site to use an adjoining vacant lot for huts and storage of surplus material.

J. A. Driscoll, secretary of the Victoria Building Trades Council, wrote of lack of accommodation for men employed at the site, stating they had no place to eat their lunches or dry wet clothes. Owing to lack of space, the employer was unable to do anything, Mr. Driscoll said.

Youth Not Accessory In Theft, Court Finds

Magistrate Henry C. Hall in city police court today acquitted Vernon Humphrey, young Victoria boy, on a charge of breaking and entering Olson Motors and committing theft.

The "not guilty" verdict was rendered by the magistrate after he had heard argument from defence counsel James J. Proudfoot and prosecutor C. L. Harrison on whether accused could be classed as an "accessory after the fact."

Charge arose after a group of boys had broken into the motor firm's premises and stolen a car. Magistrate Hall said there was doubt accused was with the group before and after the commission of the offence.

"One witness said you were a lookout and if I accepted that I'd have to find you guilty... but two others in the group said you refused to go into the premises and that you were picked up a considerable distance away from the scene—about one and one-half blocks—so I must give you the benefit of the doubt and find you not guilty," said Magistrate Hall.

Humphrey was remanded to Monday on three other charges of breaking and entering, two of them involving theft. All trials will be heard before Magistrate Hall.

SAY ACT FAIR TO RESTAURANTS

The B.C. section of the Canadian Restaurant Association feels the B.C. Labor Act has proven fair and reasonable to the restaurant industry.

This was stated by a delegation from the organization before the provincial cabinet today.

"Please resist all efforts to have the secret strike ballot clause of the act removed," the delegation urged.

Oppose Change In Vancouver City Charter

Strong opposition to seven of 11 proposed changes to the Vancouver Charter was voiced today before the Legislature's standing committee on private bills.

Four of the amendments to the charter had to do with the granting of the vote to the wives or to the husbands of property owners or tenants now entitled to cast ballots in civic elections.

The other three amendments bringing protest were:

1. To allow a percentage charge to be added to property taxes if they remained unpaid after a certain time;

2. To allow appointment of an alderman as an additional member of the Police Commission;

3. To allow the City Council to include a union-security clause in any collective agreement with any group of employees.

Opposing the vote for the spouse of a property owner or tenant were the Associated Property Owners' Association, Suburban Business and Property Owners' Association, Downtown Business Association, and the Real Estate Exchange.

NO INDICATION
Spokesman for the four groups was E. F. Fox who said there never had been a clear mandate from the voters to indicate the change was desired. The change, he stated, would give tenants a preponderance on the list.

A. E. Lord, corporation counsel for Vancouver, said the amendment to the charter would add 60,000 names to the voters' list.

The four organizations mentioned, together with the Board of Trade, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Automotive Transport Association and Building Managers' Society, opposed the other three amendments desired by the city.

Three amendments which were unopposed were power to change the city boundaries to take in a school site on University Endowment Lands; fixing a minimum fine of $15 for certain by-law infractions; charge local improvement costs by frontage rather than assessed values; remove doubt of legality of issuing tickets for traffic violations.

City Asks Province To Revise Early Closing Act On Gasoline

Says City By-law Ineffective; May Cause Store-Hour Change

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer will be advised that Victoria cannot make its by-law regarding gasoline service station operators effective under the present Shops Early Closing and Weekly Half-Holiday Act, A. J. Patton, city solicitor, said today.

He said some revision would have to be made to the provincial act.

Recently Victoria's by-law was attacked in police court when the city charged an operator under the by-law, for selling gasoline after hours.

The case was dismissed in police court on the grounds that the by-law was ineffective, Mr. Patton said.

In 1947, Vancouver and Victoria both passed by-laws regulating hours of service for station operators. The by-laws were similar. Last August the Vancouver by-law was attacked and quashed in police court. The city took it to appeal but the decision of the lower court was upheld.

DID NOT APPEAL

"In the face of this, Victoria did not appeal its case," Mr. Patton said.

"We are advising the Attorney-General that we cannot make our by-law effective under the present act which states that we must close all shops at certain times but also that we must make accommodation for the public."

He contended that the second section meant some gasoline stations must remain open, but that in naming any set ones, the city would be discriminating.

"A by-law that discriminates is invalid."

At the present time service station operators may elect to stay open 24 hours a day or must abide by the hours set under the shops early closing act.

The notice to the Attorney-General will also have an effect on a proposed amendment to the by-law which would allow grocery stores to remain open after six in the evening.

WARN OF OPPOSITION

John L. Aubry, secretary of the Joint Council of Retail Employees wrote the city today that the group would strongly oppose any attempt to lengthen hours of work established by many years of bitter struggle on the part of retail store employees.

The group, he said, would call a meeting of all retail employees and such independent grocery store operators, as opposed to grocers.

"Many of the independent store operators employ only relatives, thereby enabling them to, if they are so inclined to evade the provisions of both the Minimum Wage Act and the Hours of Work Act," Mr. Aubry contended in his letter.

City Council had approved the proposed change in principle but those who petitioned were advised they would have to re-petition, since Mr. Patton said the first request was not in order.

Drunk Driving Charge Out As Medical Opinion Differs

A charge of drunken driving against Edward Alfred Williamson, 160 Burnside Road, was dismissed by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today. Charge was laid Feb. 23.

Magistrate Hall, in passing judgment, noted that within a short time—"which did not materially alter your condition," after Dr. E. L. McNiven had examined accused and found him intoxicated, another doctor made an examination and found Williamson's condition due to fatigue and not intoxication. Still another doctor confirmed this sometime later.

"As a result of this direct contradiction of medical evidence I must give you the benefit of the doubt and dismiss the charge," Magistrate Hall said.

The two doctors who examined accused after Dr. McNiven were Drs. Jack Patterson and Robert Gale. Dr. Patterson was called by defence counsel James J. Proudfoot and Dr. Gale by Dr. Patterson.

GETS FINE, SUSPENSION

A fine of $40 and a license suspension was imposed against Harold H. Walker, 1635 Kings Road, by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today. Walker was found guilty on a charge of careless driving laid Feb. 16.

$4,900 FOR RED CROSS

Over $1,000 was collected by Canadian Red Cross canvassers between Monday afternoon and noon today, it was announced by the Victoria branch of the society today.

Total collections since the $65,000 campaign opened last week is $4,900. Red Cross officials said. The drive closes March 31.

58 Protest Zone Change

Fifty-eight persons today petitioned the city opposing a requested re-zoning of the northeast corner of Haultain and Cook Streets, to permit the erection of a confectionery store.

Firth Jubb, 1127 Haultain, wrote the covering letter in which he said that when he bought property in the area, he was assured that his would be the only corner in the district zoned for business.

He said his original plans called for a grocery, cafe and two stores, but that owing to the fact he felt the district was not sufficiently built up, to warrant it, he did not erect the two stores.

DRIVER UNDECIDED

The case of motorist Clark M. Kilgour, 2339 Lincoln Road, was adjourned to Monday by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today after Kilgour told the magistrate he did not know how to plead to the charge against him for driving while his license was under suspension Feb. 18.

W-h-e-e-e! Fresh Asparagus Appears On Vegetable List

By PENNY SAVER

Can you think of anything more enlightening first thing in the morning other than having the boss phone at 8:45 to tell you the office will be closed today while they slap on a bit of new paint—than discovering a new shipment of fresh asparagus?

You know, Mabel, I could have picked up one of those tasty green morsels and eaten it raw without batting an eyelash! Who am I trying to kid? With the little tempters costing me 55 cents, I'd have batted more than an eyelash!

Inquiring around the town they tell me shipments are expected very soon, so will let you know as soon as I see them... If you see them first let me know!

In the meantime, I thought you might like to try this delicious ham and asparagus roll... this is really an excuse on my part to use up the last bit of chili sauce. If it isn't used soon it'll be stomping around the cooler on its own!

You'll need one 16-ounce package of frozen asparagus, they

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDER

One of our obligations as parents is to give the child the advantage of a periodic physical examination by a doctor in order that he may check up on diet, on the various immunizations and on his rate of development.

Here is a boy who is badly in need of such help and his mother is shutting her eyes to the fact that he does not act in the usual way and is attributing it to "nervousness." That is a cover-up explanation if there ever was one.

"My boy will be six in March. Ever since he was an infant he has had the vomiting habit. Usually he vomits in the morning. His tonsils have been taken out and since then he seems a little better.

"Do you think it is because his tonsils are out or do you think it is because I give him a light breakfast? He gets a small glass of orange juice, a small cup of cocoa and a small piece of toast.

"I suppose he vomits because of fear. He always vomits when I take him to a doctor and I don't do this unless I am driven to it. He is a very slow eater. Would it be better to leave him alone, even if he leaves some of it, or should I help him? I am a tired, nervous, worried mother and I would appreciate any help you can give me."

The only real help will come from finding out why this boy has been vomiting for six years. If he has a tight pylorus, then the type of breakfast you give him, principally fluids, would be the least possible help to him.

Our leaflet No. 52, "Vomiting," discusses some of the various reasons why babies vomit. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Elder in care of this newspaper.

Overseas Traveler's First Sight Of Land A Big Thrill

By RITA MYERS

Your first sight of land is the green hills of Ireland, as your ship anchors in the stream off Cobh, port for Queenstown. A little tender steams out, passengers are disembarked, two or three large American cars and baggage are slung overboard. That afternoon immigration and foreign exchange officials who have come aboard are ready to check your papers. Currency is declared and entered on your passport, for checking later when you leave the country. There is nothing Gestapo about this, you are merely asked to declare that you have not more than five pounds sterling, your travelers cheques or letter of credit and your American funds.

In the grey light of early morning, we steamed up the Mersey to dock alongside the grey, gaunt, ship-filled piers, with massive cranes loading British exports.

Baggage unloaded first, then passengers disembark and stream into the huge customs sheds where baggage is assembled alphabetically. All is orderly confusion and in no time you, porter, customs officials and baggage meet. Officials are affable and friendly. Open this, or that. Fine. Chalk marks and you are in England.

CARRY HANDBAGS

The little English train is puffing alongside. Your porter takes your heavy baggage to the baggage van. This is your responsibility... no checking of trunks in England. Your handbags go with you into the coach and when all passengers are through, a shrill whistle starts you across Liverpool.

About 10.30 you are introduced to one of the newer English customs... eleven... as stewards go through the train with coffee and biscuits. Black or white? You settle back with a cigarette to watch picture-book countryside move past your vision. The fields look a good deal like those of the Fraser Valley, you think. But there all resemblance stops.

As you watch the narrow highways, with traffic bowling along the left side of the road, you wonder how you will manage driving a car. A motor trip has been planned to extend from the Irish Sea to the North Sea to the English Channel. This was done with help of "Let's Halt Awhile in Britain," by Ashley Courtney, and is a tourists' motor guide, without peer. Mr. Courtney is the English version of America's Duncan Hines... but

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix: I am engaged to a young man who is "every thing I could desire in a man, except that he is bald. I don't mind it, except that people are always commenting on it and that gets on my nerves. Will this ruin our married life if I marry him?"

MARY

Answer: It will ruin your married life if you are silly enough to let the young man's lack of hair make you ashamed of him. But why should you let a little thing like that worry you? It is not what is on the outside of a man's head but what is on the inside that counts, and if he lacked brains instead of hair you would have a right to be mortified.

TODAY'S RECIPE

One cup dried white (navy) beans, 3 cups boiling water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 small carrot, 1 small onion, 1/4 green pepper (optional), 2 stalks celery, 3 tablespoons fat, 3 tablespoons flour,

2 cups milk, salt and pepper to taste, 1/4 cup grated "medium" Canadian cheese.

Soak beans in water to cover, overnight. Drain, add the three cups boiling water and salt to beans and simmer covered, until tender, about 1 1/2 to two hours. Drain. Cut carrot, onion, green pepper and celery into small pieces. Make a sauce of the fat, flour, milk, salt, pepper and cheese. Arrange vegetables and beans in alternate layers in a greased baking dish. Cover with the cheese sauce and top with a mixture of 1/4 cup grated cheese and 1/4 cup fine, dry bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., until vegetables are tender, about 30 minutes. Let over cooked vegetables may be used and the cooking time shortened to 15 to 20 minutes. Yield, six servings.

Young Victorians Show Desire To Be Designers; Many Entries In Teen Contest

By MARGUERITE DALZIEL

Mention 'teen-agers and immediately one conjures up visions of our feminine young in loose-fitting sweaters, long, slim, plaid or check skirts, brightly-colored socks and loafers.

Yet, when these junior misses are given opportunity to put down on paper their own ideal costume for a girl in their age bracket, the results are anything but what one would expect.

Or so I found out yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Nona Damaske, well-known Victoria model, and myself were invited to judge the "Judy 'n' Jill" teen dress designing contest sponsored by Hudson's Bay Company.

The contest, based on originality, neatness and design, was open to girls from 11 to 18 years of age.

MANY IDEAS

More than 200 entries were received and practically every age group was represented.

We had a difficult job. From 200 entries we had to select first, second and third winners and nine other entries for honorable mention.

These will all be forwarded to Montreal, the top three designs to be entered in a national contest, which will earn the winner a three-day, chaperoned trip by T.C.A. to Montreal, and the opportunity to have her design manufactured by Hudson's Bay Company for sale in their stores across Canada.

Perhaps carried away by the thought of the grand national prize, and a chance to have their "very own" designs manufactured, many of the young entrants submitted not just one, but several designs.

These ranged from svelte evening ensembles, through voguish afternoon costumes to scanty beach attire—although only day-time costumes were eligible for the contest.

And perhaps we have an aspiring "Christian Dior" in our city for one of the entries bore the signature of a young Victoria lad.

Hours and hours of painstaking work were reflected in a number of the designs.

Some pictured front, back, side views; complete color detail; accessories that matched beautifully in size and shape; and the whole artistically presented and neatly mounted on stiffened cardboard, to give the best effect possible.

Others were done in pencil and pen, with complete descriptions of darts, pleats and draping pencilled in the margin.

Originality was certainly the keynote of all designs submitted.

Dehydrated Potatoes Not As Good Grain, Institute Told

At a meeting of Lake Hill Women's Institute Monday afternoon, Miss Dorothy Cox, secretary of the institute, read a letter from Karl Borden, UNICEF headquarters, New York, in reply to an emergency letter she sent recently protesting publicized destruction of a large quantity of potatoes in New England when they might have been shipped in dehydrated powder form overseas to feed hungry people of Europe.

"I share with you and hosts of other concerned persons the feeling of dismay at the destruction of food on the one hand and hunger on the other," wrote Mr. Borden. "On the practical side, however, UNICEF has never found itself in a position to use potatoes in its feeding program. Dehydration of potatoes is such an expensive process that it makes this food far less desirable than grain, for example, which has higher food values and can be bought for considerably less than the dried potatoes.

"The basic food which has been used by UNICEF has been and is dried skim milk. We have been very fortunate in procuring very large quantities of this commodity, both in Canada and the United States at very favorable prices from surplus stock."

Lake Hill members expressed appreciation of facts brought out by the correspondence.

Mrs. W. S. Webster, president, was in the chair. Letters of thanks were read from Mrs. N. Brackenbury, Horsesham, Eng., for a recent hamper, and from Dr. E. N. MacKay, director of Saanich and South Vancouver Island health units, for use of the institute room during 1949 for baby clinics.

It was decided that members will attend the afternoon session of the Provincial Legislature on March 14.

Mrs. N. Dekker, a visitor from Dekker, Man., was welcomed and afternoon tea was served under convenship of Mrs. E. Glover.

AT FASHION SHOWING

Hon. Nancy Hodges To Speak For The Arthritis Society

Twilight showing of Paris and London fashion originals, at 6.15 in the Crystal Ballroom at the Empress Hotel on March 23, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary, Victoria Branch, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, takes on added importance through the fact that Hon. Nancy Hodges, Speaker of the Legislature, will speak briefly on behalf of the society of which she is a local director.

The Victoria Branch was organized a year ago and in the space of its short existence has been able to form a medical advisory board of 11 doctors who pool their knowledge in diagnosing and suggesting suitable treatment for various types of arthritis patients are referred to this medical advisory board through their own doctors.

The branch has also been able to have a few hospital beds reserved in both hospitals for diagnostic service and active treatment and a mobile unit and physiotherapist placed in readiness to take over the care of treatments for home-bound arthritis.

Aims and objects of the arthritic and rheumatism are to maintain society a diagnostic centre; to operate the mobile unit with physiotherapist; to carry on research on arthritis and to furnish centres with up-to-date equipment which will be placed in hospitals until such time as it is possible to have a permanent centre.

A nation-wide drive for funds is planned in May to raise funds to help carry out this ambitious program.

The twilight showing of spring fashions from designers overseas is presented by T. Eaton's Ltd. An afternoon and an evening presentation is also planned with St. Joseph's Junior Auxiliary and the Jubilee Hospital Junior Auxiliary as sponsoring groups.

Ex-Telephone Operators Get-Together Includes 20 Vancouver Club Members

A group of out-of-town visitors including 20 members of the Vancouver Ex-Teleo Club, were feted by local ex-operators last week-end.

Festivities started Friday evening with the annual reunion dinner held at the Monterey. Eighty-four members were present.

Saturday morning was devoted to a waffle party at the home of Kathleen M. Clarke, 251 Tolcross Avenue. Doris Holman and Kathleen Clarke presided at the waffle irons, and Gladys, daughter of the hostess, proved a capable waitress.

Those present were: Ursula Foy, Lena Rattenbury, Mildred Ferguson, Nellie M. Radcliffe, Lily Grange, Agnes La Belle, Betty Davidson, Grace Huggitt, Hera Ford, Charlotte Yeamans, Sylena Martin, Cathie Freeman, Evelyn Rutledge, Dorothy Mason, Mary McLeod, Daisy Chambers, and Doris Holman.

On Saturday evening 40 members attended a hilarious party at the home of Mrs. Lenfesty, 126 Douglas Street. Especially amusing was the coconut song, interpreted by nine girls, dressed in cleverly designed costumes representing coconuts.

Hilda Johnson gave much pleasure with her interpretation of the types one meets in a beer parlor rest room; her observations, she said, learned by proxy, not experience.

Mrs. Lenfesty, dressed as a Bowery girl, caused much laughter with her amusing songs. Other songs were given by local ex-operators, and two numbers sung by Vera Ford, Vancouver.

The "Waffle Song," an impromptu poem composed to the tune of "Music, Music, Music" and written by Kathleen M. Clarke, was sung by the author assisted by Doris Holman, Jeanny Corry and Cathie Freeman. It was dedicated to Vancouver operators.

Visitors left on Sunday to return to Vancouver.

Clergyman Decries Lack Of Femininity

DURHAM, England (CP)—Women with "hard, unlovely faces, spindly men's dress and habits" distress Rev. A. M. Stephens, vicar of nearby Birtley.

The vicar says in his parish magazine that doing men's jobs makes women too masculine. Women did "unnatural tasks" gladly in wartime, he says, but is wrong to continue in them once conditions have returned to normal.

"There is a perilous and foolish tendency today for women to deny their nature and to become masculine."

Councillors Criticize School Board's Budget

System Employed To Balance Books Said 'Most Cockeyed Imaginable'

The manner in which the Greater Victoria School Board draws up its budget for the year was described by Councillor A. C. Wurtele, at an Esquimalt Council meeting Monday as "the most cockeyed system imaginable."

When it comes to matters of income and expenditure, the school board acts in the exact reverse of everyone and everything else, the councillor said. Instead of figuring what it can reasonably expect to receive and then arranging its expenditures accordingly, said Councillor Wurtele, the school board plans unlimited expenditures and then simply turns to provincial and municipal governments for whatever amount it needs.

ASKED FOR $15

Employees Granted $10 Wage Boost

After prolonged negotiations, permanent municipal employees in Esquimalt have been granted a $10-a-month pay increase.

Announcement of termination of wage negotiations between the municipal council and the Esquimalt Municipal Employees' Federal Union, No. 333, was made Monday night by Reeve A. I. Thomas.

The union, early in January, applied for a $15-a-month increase for full time employees and a 10-cent-an-hour increase for workers employed on a part-time basis. The 10-cent-an-hour request was granted, bringing the hourly rate for temporary help to $1.

The union, during negotiations, based its demands on scales paid in other Greater Victoria municipalities. It is understood, the new rates covering its members are retroactive to Jan. 1, 1950.

POLICE, FIREMEN WANT MORE

Esquimalt police and firemen, covered by separate work agreements, are still negotiating with council for pay increases. Police are seeking an 11 per cent reduction of their work week from the present 48 hours to 44.

Reeve Thomas said last night any change in the police work week would necessitate the hiring of another constable. He indicated policemen would be required to decide between a shorter week or more pay. He said the council could not give both.

Councillor Wurtele said the whole principle was economically wrong. He said it was about time the school board cut its cloth according to what it had.

Other members of the council were in complete agreement with Councillor Wurtele's views.

'IS THIS AMALGAMATION?'

"They talk about amalgamation," he declared. "If this is amalgamation, I think the less we have to do with it, the better." Councillor Alex Speirs thought it was about time "the experts" looked into school board expenditures.

Councillor G. R. Guillemaud said he didn't believe the school board was at all interested in the municipal government's problem of having to find money for school costs.

Councillor John Carey said with so much money going to schools he was thinking about starting one himself.

Councillor James Ellis ended discussion with the observation: "It seems to me school boards have a law unto themselves... and there seems no way to change it."

DEVALUATION IN ESQUIMALT

Maybe this is some form of what is known as the law of diminishing return.

The Esquimalt Town Planning Commission applied to the Esquimalt Council for a $100 grant to buy maps.

Councillor John Carey, a member of the commission, told the council Monday night that by asking for $100, commissioners hoped they would get $75.

Council decided, over Councillor Carey's objection, to give the commission $50.

REEVE CHANGES TUNE

Sees Little Chance For 1950 Development

The clear, ringing note of optimism for a great year of development in Esquimalt sounded by Reeve A. I. Thomas in his inaugural address at the beginning of the year, turned to a sour note of unmistakable pessimism at a meeting of the municipal council Monday night.

In January, the reeve spoke of more activity and greater accomplishment in the line of public works.

Last night, the reeve told the council he thought it had better reconcile itself to the fact it would only be able to do maintenance work this year, rather than undertake any new ventures.

"Our desires and dreams for the year are not going to get very far," the reeve told council. "There's ever so much to be done, but where the money is coming from I don't know."

The reeve said the council this year was faced with mounting costs on all sides and hardly any increase in revenue.

He was disappointed that the long-awaited and long-promised government grant had not materialized. He said there was not even any sight of such a grant. "It's all press talk, so far," the reeve said.

Noting the number of demands for increased services from council, the reeve ended his report with the observation: "There is bound to be disappointment."

New Booklet Tells Of Oil Development In Western Canada

A billion barrels of oil—and a billion dollars wanted to prove up more oil. That is the story of the past year's oil development in western Canada as portrayed in the 1950 version of the familiar blue and white booklet "Western Canadian Oils" published by James Richardson & Sons, Winnipeg. It takes 112 pages and several news maps to tell the complete story.

Canada's petroleum industry at the beginning of 1950 is less than three years old, the booklet says, but in that time Canada has advanced the clock many decades to a point where petroleum self-sufficiency is assured and surplus for export within the realms of possibility.

The oil industry is reaching maturity in Canada, the study shows. Consumption of petroleum products is rising at a rate that indicates demand for 150 million barrels a year within a decade. Three billion barrels reserve are needed to support this rate of production. More than a third of that amount has already been secured and 1950 promises to bring many more discoveries of new fields.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained from the offices of James Richardson & Sons, Government Street.

Could you, too, say that to your wife? An easy way to make this true in your case is to get your name onto a "Family Income" Policy at once. You can do this for very little. For example, at age 30, only $4.50 a week would protect your wife with $200 a month for the next 20 years and then $10,000 in cash. (Other amounts cost in proportion.) WOMEN JOIN IN MARCH ON CAPITAL

L.P.P. Support Admitted By Jobless Chief

About 20 women were included in the delegation from the Vancouver. Unemployed Action Association which arrived in Victoria aboard the afternoon boat to seek immediate action from the provincial government to provide more jobs.

The women, like the men, range in age from the early 20's to middle 50's.

The delegation of about 60 marched from the C.P.R. Wharf to the Williams Building Broughton Street, following their arrival. There, a local committee was waiting to serve sandwiches and coffee.

Fred Collins, leader and spokesman for the group, said when he meets the cabinet tomorrow he will ask for immediate action to provide jobs for B.C.'s unemployed.

Questioned about himself, Collins described himself as an unemployed seaman. He said he quit a ship last fall to take a land job, but that the job he had in mind was taken before he got to it. In the meantime, he said, his old job was filled by someone else.

Questioned about reported financial support given the unemployed delegation from the Labor Progressive Party, Collins admitted such support had been given.

He stated, however, that many trade unions and other organizations had contributed as well. Collins commented: "We are grateful to all organizations which offered us financial assistance."

Greek Election Result Still At Stalemate

ATHENS (AP)—Returns in Greece's parliamentary elections spurred predictions today that Constantin Tsaldaris' dominant Populist (Royalist) Party would be left out of the Greek government to emerge finally from the balloting.

Late returns from the nation's 146,000 soldiers in Sunday's election gave the Conservative Populists a narrow lead over the left-of-centre national progressive union of Gen. Nicholas Plastiras.

Political experts say King Paul will give the mandate to form a government to the party which gains most parliamentary seats. However, Tsaldaris was viewed as not able to form a lasting government because his strength in parliament could not survive even a tolerant vote of confidence.

CADDY SEEN OFF TOFINO

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—The weird old monster Caddy, has reared in British Columbia waters again.

This time the 50-foot creature with fins four feet high, a long slender neck and a cat-like head, was sighted off Tofino, on the west coast of Vancouver Island by Gwen Coleman and Bryan Tickle of Port Alberni.

They said the creature was within 100 feet of the shore.

Fans Sleep In Police Cells

PORTAGE la PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—The city council chamber and police court were used as a hotel Monday night. So were some police station cells.

A blizzard which roared unexpectedly over the district marooned most out-of-town fans attending an intermediate hockey game here.

Blocked roads kept visitors from nearby MacGregor, Man., in Portage. Hotels reported every room full and beds were put up in the lobbies and corridors.

The city hall was opened to the stranded travelers. Many slept in the council chamber on

Yugoslavs Kill Italian Skipper

VENICE (AP)—Crew members of an Italian fishing boat reported today their skipper was shot to death Sunday night by an officer of a Yugoslav patrol boat in the Adriatic Sea. Ontario Only Unbeaten Rink In Brier Cup VANCOUVER (CP)—Carl Asmussen skipped his Kitchener, Ont. rink to a third-round 11-7 victory over British Columbia to lead the 10-rink field as the only unbeaten entry in the Dominion curling championship.

Both Nova Scotia and Alberta, unbeaten before this morning, fell the Maritime province 11-9 to twice-beaten Manitoba and Cliff Manahan's Alberta rink 12-5 to Saskatchewan.

Northern Ontario dropped New Brunswick 9-8 for Tom Ramsay's second victory and the second loss for N.B. Skip Jim Vance.

Prince Edward Island won its first game—an extra-end 9-8 triumph over Quebec which now has two losses and one win.

Best and worst curling of the day came in the Saskatchewan-Alberta game where Manahan and son Ross, at third, missed wide-open shots consistently for their first loss.

Ernie Whittier's squad found the weight early and, playing a cautious brand of curling, never gave Manahan, twice Dominion champ, a chance to come back.

Spy Prober Urges City By City Expose Of Communist Activity

WASHINGTON (UP)—A House spy investigator proposed today a city-by-city expose of Communist Party activities similar to the one made recently by two F.B.I. undercover agents from Pittsburgh.

Rep. Harold H. Velde (R-Ill.), a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, said he believes the testimony of F.B.I. informants Matthew Cvetie and George E. Dietze "has been a major blow to Communist Party strength in western Pennsylvania."

"I think we have done a good job in exposing Communists in Pittsburgh," Velde said, "and I'm hopeful we'll be able to do the same thing on party machinery in other cities such as New York, San Francisco, Detroit, Cleveland and Chicago.

"We're certainly on the lookout for similar witnesses from those areas."

The committee recalled Dietze for questioning at 10:30 a.m., E.S.T., today. A music teacher, he told the committee Monday that for six years he posed as a Communist to lure party members to meetings "where they could be watched."

Dietze told newsmen he believed that current exposure of Communists in the Pittsburgh area "will force them to go underground."

Victims Identified Include Two Babies

OCEAN FALLS, B.C. (BUP)—Eight persons, including two babies, were killed in an early morning blaze which swept a frame 25-suite apartment at the northern B.C. coastal town of Ocean Falls today, 350 miles north of Vancouver.

An eight-month-old boy and a seven-week-old boy were among the dead.

The bodies were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Whatmough, both about 65; Mr. and Mrs. H. Wonnacott, both about 28, and their eight-month-old son; Mrs. Sally Diane Phillips, 20, and her seven-week-old son; and Mrs. Thelma Rennie.

Flames broke out in a third floor kitchen at 1:45 a.m. and were brought under control five and a quarter hours later by the 12-man volunteer fire brigade under Clarence Clark.

The dead were found on the third and fourth floors of the four-story, white-painted building, owned by Pacific Mills and occupied by its Ocean Falls employees and their families. Three bodies were found crammed in a small passageway at the rear of the fourth floor.

MANY LOOKED ON

Volunteer fireman R. R. Edwards said the flaming building was silhouetted against a clear moon-lit sky. Most of the town's 2,700 residents left their homes in night clothes to watch the fire. After the flames were brought under control, firemen began bringing the bodies out one by one. They were placed on stretchers and left outside the smoking building. Later the bodies were taken to the town's small morgue, completely filling it.

Twenty-one of the apartment suites were occupied by Pacific Mills families. About 50 persons were in the building when the fire broke out, and most escaped down the iron fire escape at the front of the building.

Volunteer fireman Edwards said he arrived on the scene at 2:15 a.m. and the fire "was burning madly with the flames going 15 to 20 feet above the apartment building."

WIND DROPPED

"I helped with the hoses and worked with the chief. We were lucky the wind died down because it probably would have spread the flames to the duplex on the right of the apartment and to another house right on the other side."

Edwards said "three of the bodies were found in a small passageway at the end of the building on the fourth floor. One body was found on the third, and all the others on the fourth. I don't know where we'll find the one that's missing."

Two R.C.N. Ships Arrive At Havana

The two Royal Canadian Navy vessels are in Caribbean waters to take part in manoeuvres later this month with units of the Royal Navy and the United States Navy.

Sweden Angry At Reds Over Ship Seizure

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Sweden today accused Russia of seizing Swedish fishing ships in the Baltic far beyond warranted limits of territorial waters, and Stockholm took an "extremely serious view" of the incidents.

Foreign Minister Oesten Unden made the statement amid mounting demands by Swedish fishermen for naval escorts to prevent such seizures.

The captains of the Swedish trawlers Marion and Larex told reporters Monday they had been boarded by a Soviet minesweeper some 30 miles outside Russian-held territory. They said they had been forced at pistol point to take their ships to a Russian harbor and been questioned day and night for two weeks concerning the possibility of their having been spying.

The Foreign Office said it is looking into reports to the dis appearance of two other Swedish fishing ships also believed seized by the Russians.

The Foreign Minister told Elio Hallstrom, head of a deep sea fishermen's organization, that the Swedish government was "especially embarrassed" by the lack of information from the Russians on an apparent extension of their territorial waters.
